Snowsports School Management Seminar – Mount Snow, VT

On Any Gear!

December 3-5, 2012

The 2012 Snowsports School Management Seminar will be held at Mount Snow, VT, on December 3 - 5, 2012. Even though it's early in the season, Mount Snow is the "Snowmaking Fan Gun Capital of North America." With only a little cold weather Mount Snow can pound out tons of snow and provide excellent skiing in the early season.

The Snowsports Management Committee has put together a great schedule of educational sessions and on snow clinics for this year's event. The opening session and Keynote address will be held on Monday evening at 8:00pm. We are planning a memorable keynote address from an industry expert. On snow and indoor sessions are scheduled to take place during the day on Tuesday and Wednesday.

A great line up of educators is being scheduled including numerous National Team members. The seminar will include optional special "tracks" for AASI members and Adaptive members. A delicious banquet is planned for Tuesday evening with special awards to be presented at that time including the Einar Aas Memorial Award.

Complete details, lodging information, and a session schedule will be mailed to each school director in early October. If your mountain employment does not begin until late fall, please be sure to look for the mailing at that time or check the website under the Snowsports School Directors Help Desk.

Southern Snowsports School Management Seminar – Timberline, WV

January 16-17, 2013

The Southern seminar is scheduled for January 16-17 at Timberline, WV. Your School Director and/or trainer is required to attend one of the Seminars each season. Details on the Southern Seminar will be sent to schools in regions 4 and 7 along with the Mount Snow Seminar.

And, for AASI Registered and Level I members, there is an event for you as well. Here is your possible bonus......You may get to ride with one of the AASI Team coaches. Two days at Killington with any of AASI Eastern Education Staff sounds like a winning ticket to me!

President's Message Ron Kubicki

Get Ready to "Strut Your Stuff"

Ron Kubicki, PSIA-AASI Eastern President

abor Day has come and gone - the unofficial end of summer - there is actually color in the trees already and the Fed Ex and UPS deliveries are increasing at the local ski and snowboard shops. If you go on Facebook, you will find pics and posts of people's new gear, or their "wish list" or "come on winter" pleas. Local resorts phones are ringing as first cut-off dates for pass and package prices increase loom, yep no doubt about – our time of the year is near.

As you get prepared for the season, whether is a last minute toning of your elite-athlete conditioned body, or chasing around last years ski socks with a bat so you can finally wash them, keep one thing in mind for me - - - this is YOUR time to shine!

These pages are often filled with articles of the state of PSIA-E/AASI or our national organization – ASEA, or the benefit of belonging, or the cost, plus articles and editorial opinions, experiences and tips from members. All that is good stuff, it is why we have a newsletter; to communicate with you as to the state of your association. But, c'mon, why are we all here? Because we love to snowboard and ski, we love to teach and share, we love to lead groups or individuals to enhance their learning experience, to enhance their skills, to give them a level of accomplishment and pleasure. We love to be the center of attention!

In my mind, that is why you are invaluable to PSIA-E/AASI. It is only in these pages and at board meetings or conference calls where we speak of the 10,700 plus members, or speak of "the association". Our role is to enhance your role, to give you value of membership and raise the regard resort management have for your membership and certification, and believe me, we are in the midst of all this. We are actively meeting with national and other divisions across the country whose members share your concerns. We have a summit of the four largest divisions' leadership attending Eastern BOD October meeting. But, as I have stated here before - we are an association of one – you.

When you lead your lesson, or clinic, you are PSIA-E/AASI to whomever you stand in front of — hopefully you don't "stand" for long; skiing and snowboarding both being verbs and all! But that is YOUR time to shine — make yourself the best memory your guests have of their vacation at your resort, be the "one" who gave one of the "best clinics I ever attended". Show your pride in your accomplishment, your knowledge and skill to connect; to create an exciting and valuable learning environment.

This time IS all about you, about your skill, your training, your certification, your association, your resort, your guests/students/clients. You became all that you are because of your drive and desire, your skill and ability to communicate, your ease to lead guide, coach and teach; well now that time is fast approaching, the time to "strut your stuff."

Wrap your head around the fact that you are the "real deal." Plan to be dazzling, get ready to "WOW!" them, rage into winter with the mindset that you make a difference; you can give them the passion....

Or, as I write on the whiteboard in the locker room so it is the last thing the staff sees before they go out the door. . .

"Go Ahead... make their day!"

Make this your Best Season with the Right Fit.

With 80+ years of combined boot fitting experience, we're here for your comfort and performance.

Like an Olympic 4 x 100. . .

(Staff Changes at the Eastern Division)

imagine many of you enjoyed the drama and competition of the Summer Olympics just as my family did this past August. One of the most impressive performances of the Games in my mind was the flawless World Record 4 x 100 women's relay race during which the American runners seamlessly made baton pass after baton pass at full stride creating the appearance of one superhuman performer circling the track. Very impressive stuff. And while there are no world record relays for staff transitions in not-for-profit associations, that isn't stopping us from attempting to make some important "baton passes" in the division office as seamlessly as possible for our members.

Mickey Sullivan stepping down as Director of Education & Programs

After eight seasons of dedicated and passionate service to members and the organization, Mickey Sullivan is stepping down as Director of Education & Programs this fall to devote more time to managing his family's bowling center (Crystal Lanes) in Corning, NY. Mickey has made many significant contributions to the Eastern Division during his time as our Director of Education & Programs including the successes of our "Eastern Team" in preparing for and placing 7 members on the PSIA/AASI National Teams in 2008 and 5 members on the national teams in the 2012 tryouts, building a strong working relationship with the Rocky Mountain and Western Divisions including "examiner exchange" educational programs, introducing online exams for our members and bringing together a true sense of intra-discipline cooperation and communication within the Eastern Division.

"As I end my time as the DOEP I feel that PSIA-E/AASI is in a good place to continue to prosper and support the snowsports industry," said Mickey. "My greatest reward in this job has been the opportunity to work with passionate people in the snowsports industry. I look forward to continuing to serve the organization as an active PSIA-E coach and examiner." Mickey went on to say that he was most proud of building an education team that includes all disciplines with everyone contributing to the larger cause of snowsports education through PSIA/AASI.

Thanks Mickey from all of us here in the office and on behalf of the organization!

Don Haringa named new Director of Education & Programs

After an extensive search and interview process during the months of July and August that included a number of very qualified candidates, Don Haringa, Director of Snowsports at Peek 'n Peak Resort in western New York has been named our new Director of Education & Programs and will join the Eastern Division office in October.

Don has more than 15-years as the Snowsports School Director for a large school (180 – 210 instructors), has been a member of the PSIA Eastern Team and is a 20 plus year member of the Eastern Alpine Board of Examiners.

Promotions at Eastern Division Office

After many years of progressive growth and contributions Eastern Division education department staffer Melissa Skinner has been named Associate Director of Education & Programs. In addition, Jodi Bedson has been named Director of IT in recognition of her efforts managing our membership database, website and various event registration related functions. Both Melissa and Jodi have been at the Eastern Division office in various capacities for ten years and we are proud of their progress and professionalism.

Congratulations to Melissa & Jodi, thank you to Mickey and welcome to Don! ■

The Engine of a Skier

Peter Howard, Alpine Education & Certification Chairperson

Note: This is the second in a series of explorations concerning the Skills and Skills Concept t's often said that the rotary or turning skill is the most over used of all the skills. This is said because recreational skiers appear to rush the top of the turn by twisting the skis either too much or too fast. It would be great if most skiers were so balanced that they could quickly twist the skis right underfoot by turning their legs. Unfortunately what is happening is that the tails are pushed out as much or more than the tips are turned it. The hips follow the ski tips and the rest is no mystery for ski teachers with history. What may come, as a bit of surprise is that the turning skill is the drive train, the heart, and the engine of a skier. Turning is the essence of skiing and unless this skill is spot on true performance potential will be hard to reach.

Can a skier learn to edge the skis a bit earlier in a turn in an hour or two? Is it possible to learn to use a long leg-short leg, leg action pattern in a couple hours? Do you dare to try to change the way a skier gets twist to their skis in a one-hour private lesson?

Before the last question is answered a little more information is needed. Like what do the stance and the for-aft balancing look like? The closer the stance is to slightly flexed in all joints (ankles, knees, hips, and spine) the greater the likely hood that turning can actually occur under the feet. Also the greater the likely hood that muscle groups will be free to apply twisting effort rather than be tied up holding the person up. It is worth mentioning that the ankles should not be over flexed or under flexed. The spine should be evenly flexed. The lower back should not be hollow (too upright) or folded above the pelvis (too flexed). The shoulders should have a bit of roundness so the chest is not totally upright. These may seem like fine details but they have significant impact on for-aft balancing which has a direct relationship to how well a skier can turn their legs. So the turning skill depends very directly on fore aft balancing skill and stance.

If skiers can turn without being in great foreaft balance where else does turning come from? It can come from the whole body (rotation of the hips, torso, shoulders). Skiers can use ski design to ride around the sidecut. (Do you turn the skis? or do the skis turn you?) It can come from quickly twisting the lower body in one direction against the weight of the upper body (equal and opposite reaction). The upper body can be twisted to face down hill and anchored with a pole plant, when the edges are released the stored twist will cause the legs to realign with the torso. There can be some leg rotation (this is a good thing).

Most skiers use a mixture of these ways to get twist to their skis. And this is why trying to change a multi –faceted ingrained pattern is like taking the engine out of a car.

There can be a few instances where body rotation can be a tactical help but most of the time it is a liability. And yes in a longer turn we are a bit more in line with our skis but we should keep an open attitude of our hips to the new intended turn. And by the way that well intended pole swing can be just enough to turn the shoulder and the hip away from the new turn at the last moment. When just the legs are turned it creates stored torque, when the edges are released or resistance is minimized there will be a resulting realignment of the body. This is why steering into a countered relationship makes the next turn happen faster and easier than if the body faces the same direction as the ski tips at the end of a turn. This quality of turning skill is what's asked for in many level 3 exam tasks. Simultaneous hop turns, pivot slips, mogul skiing, and performance short radius turns all require strong balanced leg turning.

Do most skiers over use the turning skill? No it's just executed from somewhere other than the center of the skis, often with a variety of other movements that have their own liabilities. The ski and boot manufactures put a little line on the skis and on the side of the sole of the boot. Those two lines should line up with one right over the other. If all our equipment came with a manual it would say "Stand Here"

A way to help get a sense of how to do this is to imagine standing on two crossed lines. One line is drawn down the hill (the fall line), about 3 feet long. The other is drawn across the hill, about 3 feet long. (Horizontal). The skier stands on the horizontal line and the other line runs up and down between the skier's feet. The idea is to turn the legs without having the feet cross on top of the line between the feet. This should first be done standing still, no skis on. Then it should be done skiing. If the hips rotate with the ski tips there is a very good chance that the lower foot will end up on top of the line running up and down the hill.

Turning the legs creates a "lead" ski. (no shuffling required) There is a beautiful simplicity to this leg action. (This activity courtesy of Matt Boyd)

Imagine a slotted screwdriver under the arch of each foot. Twist the legs to turn an imaginary screw into the snow. Screw the edged skis through the duration of the turn without following the tips with the hips and torso.

In conclusion, the "turning skill" is a skill that everyone uses however it is very sensitive to stance above and along the length of the skis, which is Fore-Aft Balance. It is said that the better a person turns the better a skier they are. Maybe that is why in competition motor sports the best engines are taken apart and rebalanced for high performance.

Alpine Exam Process Evolution; Important Updates

Mickey Sullivan, Director of Education & Programming

n the Summer 2012 SnowPro we defined the changes to the Level II and Level III exam process. If you have reviewed the changes I think you'll agree that they will improve the quality of the certified instructor. We did receive much feedback on the initial change recommendations of June 2011 and after careful consideration the alpine steering committee and the Board of Directors approved some adjustments to the initial recommended changes at their June 2012 meeting. In the final version, the most significant addition to the exam process is the requirement to obtain the Children's Specialist certificate. The previously approved race/Nastar requirement has been dropped.

The requirements and process for the Alpine Level II and Alpine Level III Certification are detailed in the Fall 2012 Alpine Exam Guide which can be found on the PSIA-E website under 'Education/Alpine Education'. The changes to the Level II exam will begin this season. If you have already begun the Level II exam process then these changes will not affect your Level II exam process. The changes to the Level III exam process will not begin until the 2013-14 season. You can review the changes by going to this web link. http://www.psia-e.org/exams

Ultimately these changes will help to keep our certified instructors current and relative to the snowsports business today. If you have any questions please do not hesitate to contact the education department at PSIA-E.

In Memoriam

Edwin A. Kowal

Edwin A. Kowal of Amherst, a retired engineer who was active in outdoor sports, died Aug. 29 after being injured in a bicycling accident in Queenston, Ont. He was 69.

An experienced cyclist, Mr. Kowal was among a small group riding down a hill on the Niagara River Parkway on Aug. 28 when he lost control of his bicycle and crashed, suffering severe head injuries despite wearing a helmet, authorities had reported. He was airlifted to Hamilton General Hospital, where he died.

An outdoors enthusiast, Mr. Kowal had been a certified ski and snowboard instructor. As a member of the HoliMont Snowsports Team, Ed taught both snowboarding and skiing and was actively training to become a certified Telemark instructor. He had a wonderful rapport with his students no matter what age. He also worked at Holiday Valley for seven years. Ed also enjoyed sailing; kayaking with the Zoar Valley Paddling Club and the University at Buffalo; and hiking. Mr. Kowal was a member of Adirondack Mountain Club's Niagara Frontier Chapter and of the University at Buffalo's Tango Club and Tango at CanalSide.

A Tribute To Chalotte Montbach: A Very Special Lady

Chris Ericson, PSIA-E Alpine Examiner

It was with a heavy heart that I learned of Charlotte Montbach's passing over the summer. I met Charlotte for the first time at last year's Pro Jam and was immediately taken back by her positive spirit, enthusiasm and well, her "frankness". I knew from the moment we met that our combined personalities could potentially get us in a bunch of trouble. It was going to be a good week and we were undoubtedly going to make the best out of some disappearing snow. The group loved her stories of the many years of attending Pro Jams and ITC's that she had gone to (compared to my one) and her numerous outings with Otto Frei. Charlotte would reminisce about those days with Otto and his "bluntness" using his quotes regularly – such as; "There's no such thing as bad snow, just bad skiers".

I left the snow each day talking about her with other instructors who knew her much better than I did and filled me in on her history of skiing and her love of the sport. However as I learned more about Charlotte and her immediate challenges in life, I was reminded of how just a few hours of skiing in the sun, a cool breeze on your face and laughs with fellow instructors could brighten up a person's day. Charlotte was always apologetic for what she thought was her lack of performance during the week and yet, it was her courage and performance that kept us all going. We were ALL inspired by her, which only made it more appropriate that she receive the Benji Award at the banquet. I thank you Charlotte for joining my group on my very first Pro Jam event and I will always have a run reserved just for you each year I go.

Mini Academy for Alpine and Telemark - Killington, VT

December 15-16, 2012

Can't arrange for five days away? The Mini Academy may be for you! If you're an Alpine Level III instructor and want to ski with a member of the PSIA Alpine National Team, this is your opportunity. Nordic Telemarkers will have the opportunity to ski with some of this country's best Nords. Prepare for the season, get some valuable feedback, and have fun doing it, all on the weekend without missing any work! Attendance is limited by the number of team members available, and the event often closes before the deadline, so make your plans early.

"This event is made possible in part through a grant from the PSIA-AASI Education Foundation."

Snow Pro Jam, Master's Academy and Telemark Pro Jam – Killington, VT December 17-21, 2012

This has got to be the best Christmas present ever! We're back at Killington, the largest ski resort in the east. The Killington Grand Hotel, great ski terrain, the most snow and tremendous hospitality will make this year's Pro Jam at Killington one to remember. Our staff for the week includes a great mix of exciting PSIA-E examiners and National Team members.

Any veteran Pro-Jammer can enlighten you about the "Pro Jam experience." With the opportunity to hold the Pro Jam a little later in December we can expect some great snow. There are also extremely fun Pro Jam dances, super duper "Ed Staff," great vendor support and demos, and everything else the event involves. As the season approaches, anticipation is high, our minds (and hopefully our bodies) are ready to go, and all we need now is a good start to the season. The Snow Pro Jam/Master's Academy is an excellent way to lock in your focus. There are groups for those who want to gear up for the season, or for people who want to begin preparing for exams. Regardless of which type of group you choose, you can expect to have a great time.

If you haven't attended this event before, here is a little of what you can expect: Pro Jam is the gathering spot for nearly 500 snowsports instructors, sponsors and guests from all over the East Coast. It's an opportunity for Alpine Registered, Level I, and Level II members to ski with course conductors from the Eastern Educational staff. Level III members ski in the Master's Academy with members of the National Alpine Demonstration Team. Nordic members will also ski with some of the best ski coaches in the country. Most days include an après-ski activity, culminating in a dinner and dance on Thursday evening.

There's also a "super raffle" - with exceptional prizes - held during the Thursday evening banquet to benefit the Education Foundation and Membership Scholarship Fund. Our sponsors and industry partners have provided some exciting and unique items for the raffle. You won't want to miss this fun and important element of the evening. Please see the special registration policies outlined in the Summer 2012 SnowPro (also available online at www.psia-e. org). If you can't find your issue, or don't have access to the Internet, feel free to give the office a call for more information on registration.

Race Camp - Hunter, NY

January 7-8, 2013; 2-day camp January 7-9, 2013; 3-day camp

The very popular PSIA-E Race Camp is a great way to kick off your race season and get ready for the gates. The PSIA-E camps have featured coaching by Olympic medalists, US Ski Team coaches and some of the best ski coaches in the country. This year we're working hard to line up another great coaching staff for this event. The Hunter race camp is for advanced skiers who desire to learn how to race, or who already have race experience. There will be lots of coaching on both ski technique and race tactics along with timed runs through the gates. Participants should be prepared for both GS and slalom training. Groups are divided according to ability and needs. You can choose a two-day camp or a three-day camp. Check the PSIA-E website for guest coach announcements.

Region 1 Report

Greetings Region I,

We trust you all had a wonderful summer and are gearing up for a big winter. Teaching skiing and snowboarding though is a gear laden occupation, one guaranteed to have you wading through old ski boots (I may need that Lang buckle for another boot honey...), snowboards (...but this one is for days with between 24-37 3/8ths inches of pow pow Dad...duh!), and clothing (I know they have a few holes but they are the warmest pair of long underwear ever!).

We thrive on gear but what kind of gear are you getting for your brain? What are you reading and thinking about to help bring your teaching to that next level?....anyone, anyone. Bueller...Bueller. Summer was a great time to gather some new ideas but if you haven't looked at some new materials allow me to suggest a few things that may help get the gears moving.

#1 The Little Book Of Talent by Daniel Coyle. A quick book full of great tips for improving your skills, any skills no matter what the task. The larger version of this is Coyle's outstanding book The Talent Code, a must read!

#2 Harvey Penick's Little Red Book. Again, a quick read. Actually it's a notebook compiled of a lifetime's worth of lessons from arguably the greatest teacher the game of golf has ever seen. In my opinion, it's the greatest book about teaching skiing that has absolutely nothing to do with skiing. Davis Love Ill's introduction is worth the price of admission alone.

#3 Harry Potter...all of them! If you teach kids, these books are a must. They are fantastic reads no matter how old you are. The Hunger Games and Twilight series are up there as well. Fellas, I'm telling you, they're good!

#4 The Nordstrom Way to Customer Service Excellence by Robert Spector and Pat McCarthy. Known for its outstanding service, The Nordstrom Way breaks down the famous department store's method by highlighting front line staff who make the magic happen.

#5 The Power of Habit by Charles Duhigg. How are habits (good and bad) formed and how can we influence them? While it never mentions skiing or riding, the parallels are everywhere in this book and will have you looking at your guests, your personal skiing and riding and your organization differently.

#6 The Inner Game Of Tennis by Tim Gallwey. A short book that discusses how the brain operates with regards to the tennis swing but if could easily be applied to skiing and riding. Within our brains, Gallwey speaks of Self 1, which is the knee jerk reaction self and Self 2, which is the thinking, deliberate self and how to change movement patterns which are deeply ingrained. A recent book by Nobel Prize Winner Daniel Kahneman, Thinking Fast and Slow discusses the exact same topic. What's remarkable about Gallwey's book is that he wrote it in 1974 and could have easily been titled "The Inner Game of Skiing And Riding"

#7 Effective Ski Coaching by Tom Reynolds. A lifetime student of athletics, Coach Reynolds, like Harvey Penick put his thoughts regarding coaching skiing down for us to use, think about, practice and build upon. What more could a teacher hope for?

Well class I think that's enough to get you all started. This list is merely just suggestions. The important thing is that you seek out material that gives you pause for thought. Poetry, athletics, architecture, whatever you like can be applied to your teaching and help you transfer images and sensations to your guests. Incidentally, I'm always looking for good books as well so if you have something that was exceptional, let me know.

Thanks for reading and bring on the season!

Region 2 Report

Being Region Two, this is probably only the second report that started with a comment about fall in the air, but hey, fall is in the air, and it's awesome.

There are some things moving and shaking up in the mountains. Congratulations to Russ Kauff on his appointment as the director of the Ski and Ride School at Sugarbush. Killington also welcomes Dan Bergeron in his new role as adult programs manager and congratulates Christina Mattsson on her promotion to children's program manager. Also, Chris Saylor takes over the reins at Okemo after working with their children's programs since 2001.

Things will be a little different over at Stratton as well with the US Open moving to Vail. It certainly got snowboarding into the news and mind of the locals, albeit briefly. Bromley added to their summer offerings with their Arial Adventure Park containing about 60 features, while Mount Snow improved their mountain bike offerings by polishing up trail 7, their novice down hill route. In other news, Jay Peak is spending 30 million dollars on improvements that include their Mountain Learning Center, which will house rentals, daycare, lessons and a café. The investors who own Jay also purchased Burke Mountain, so one can hopefully look forward to revitalization there as well. Smugglers Notch has upped the ante in environmental stewardship by installing 35 GPS solar trackers made by Vermont based AllSun that will track the sun, boost energy production and power most of the village lodge. It's exciting to see all these resources going into local areas.

Even though it's summer (or was, now that we're comfortably into fall), it's important to stay connected to what's going on in the industry. We are ambassadors of both our sport and our mountain and being informed is key to that. The above paragraph is based on articles found at www.saminfo.com or www. skivermont.com. Those two websites have slightly different types of information, but are very useful. Be sure when you go back to your mountain that you check out your own website. Many an answer has been found right on the very pages we take for granted.

Also, please check out www.facebook.com/RegionTwoPsiaaasiE to interact with your board representatives as well as other PSIA/AASI folk. As educators, we know the more open the dialog the better, so let us know what you think!

Enjoy the crisp air and we'll see you on the snow soon — Katherine Rockwell and Curtis Cowles

Region 4 Report

As summer starts to wind down and the temperatures become more manageable, I am sure many of you are anxiously waiting for the colors to start changing signaling that winter is right around the corner. The good news is that forecasters are already calling for below normal temperatures and above normal precipitation for the East coast, so let's keep our fingers crossed that they are correct!

Hopefully you have all checked out the event schedule already and seen the amazing variety of events being offered for this season! I would encourage everyone to think about taking an event that you have never tried before. If you really daring, try taking up a new disciple and explore all that the snow sports industry has to offer. I for one have taken up another disciple and plan to start down the certification path this winter in the hopes being dual certified.

I would encourage everyone to check out both the Divisional and National web sites since they serve as great resources to get ready for the upcoming season. Also, do not forget that you can now register for educational events and pay your dues on-line.

That's all for now, I look forward to seeing everyone on the hill this season! Eric Jordan, Region 4 Director

Region 6 Report

By Brian Smith Region 6 Director

By now many of you are getting emails about skiing, talking about skiing and day dreaming about skiing. Yes! It's going to be that time soon enough. In this report I would like to take a moment and share some observations about the division and the association.

Many fellow members have various concerns with the association. Some are concerned about our professional image relating to guests and management and some are concerned about the dues billing issues, and financial direction. Some are concerned about programs, certification requirements, and certificate programs. Whatever reason is yours remember there are many and there all equally important.

Throughout my life I have learned that in order for an idea to evolve and gain influence, people need to speak out. Collective power is the catalyst for an idea needs to affect change. This results in outcomes that benefit everyone. We are facing challenges both beyond our control and within. A bad snow year is uncontrollable. Changing business as usual is controllable. We the membership with our voice can make a difference. You know the old saying. "If you don't like something do something." Create pressure the kind that makes people listen.

If you have an issue with the way things are structured within the organization and can support it with an idea for improvement let someone know. Continue to fill out a survey, send an email to our leadership at National and talk to your people on the board. Be heard. I hear of all the challenges as to why we can't change the billing cycle. And quite frankly they seem self-serving from an administration position. The natural reaction to a collective and positive request for change should be "what can we do to help?" In regards to this and other important issues it does not feel this way working with national. Instead we are hung up on how change is going to make it hard on those who implement it, leadership.

Well that's how it goes.

When a customer says they didn't like the crowds on a certain trail we don't keep taking that one. We are the customers within PSIA-AASI.

I realize there are a lot of details when implementing change that have a ripple effect on the due process of current operational behavior. But, until we see how much of an impact it is and how to navigate through the challenge we will never know. Persistent communication, from the membership to national and the divisions on these issues and more has to continue. In all honesty it seems challenging to work with an office that has 8 other divisional needs to associate with as well as a national "to do" list of responsibility.

For anyone who has considered taking the cs1 or cs2 I highly recommend doing so. I personally have taken both and the value of these programs is exceptional. I have worked closely at my home resorts in the kids departments for the past 5 years, the information learned at the cs1 and cs2 has given me the tools to achieve developmental outcomes with kids of all ages and has opened my mind to the endless creativity one can experience working with children.

Snowsports instructors want to earn more money. First, having a good snow year helps. However, perhaps it's not management we should be trying to educate all the time, but the general public. The more we speak to people and educate our consumer as to why it's important to request a certified Pro the more the public will understand the benefits and speak to management and request a pro. We can do this every day we interact with the guests.

Go with a Pro is cool, but it is going to take more than that to change main stream America's perception. It will take all of us representing. We need to be right in front of the nose of our customer.

I still ride the lift and meet people who ski all the time and have minimal or no knowledge of our organization and purpose. That's the thing "purpose". We have a lot of it when it comes to safe Snowsport experiences. Our purpose is our

truth. Sell it to the consumer and reveal what the association's purpose is. They will buy into the idea that a certified pro is the only pro for them.

I am happy to report that at this year's October board meeting we have invited leadership representation from four other divisions. This is a step in the right direction. These other divisions face similar challenges and conduct similar operations. I'm looking forward to listening and learning more about our association from others throughout the country.

Your board has a great group of people volunteering and working with a positive and strong Eastern administrative office they do a great job! Please continue to share your thoughts with me and Jack Jordan in Region 6 or with any of the board members.

At the end of the day we want to have a strong association that has a profound and positive impact on the Snowsports consumer. You as a member receiving the education/certification and support of PSIA-AASI will make that impact great. PSIA-AASI an excellent association which provides thousands of members with the tools they need to have a great mountain experiences with every quest.

Stay thirsty my friends. For snow that is.

Sincerely,

Brian Smith

Region 7 Report

Paul Crenshaw, Regional Director reports: This summer has reminded me of the 1958 movie The Long, Hot Summer starring Paul Newman. Thank goodness with AC being more available most every where you go it was not as uncomfortable as in the movie. As I write this August is half over, which means that snow guns in some areas should be starting in about 3 months.

With this Early Fall issue of the SnowPro you have received a copy of the Schedule of Events for the 2012-2013 Season. You should start looking at the schedule and planning for which events you are interested in taking this season. Whenever possible I encourage you to participate in events in Region 7 to keep our area productive in continuing to have as many events scheduled as we do.

After finding which events you might be interested in consider applying for a scholarship to help fund your event. On page 18 of the Summer Issue of the SnowPro is a detailed explanation of all the scholarships available and the procedure to follow to apply. This information is also on the web site. The BIG-GEST thing to stay aware of is the deadline which is Friday, September 30, 2012. This is real early for a snow sport season and many interested members have allowed this time to pass when they had planned to apply. Get the application on line and mail or fax it by the deadline. There is over $15,000 waiting to help you attend the event you want to take.

Continue with your late summer and fall activities and stay injury free. If Walter or I may help you in any way please contact us.

PSIA /AASI National Report

Bill Beerman, PSIA-Eastern National Board Rep

his June, the National Board of Directors gathered in Golden, CO. for the first of two annual meetings. The summer meeting agenda includes the executive director's "State of the Nation" address, the election of new board members and the review and approval of the annual budget. The group also hears department reports and project updates from National staff, which this year included final revised certification standards and discussion of the much-anticipated 2013 release of new technical manuals for Alpine, Adaptive, Nordic, Snowboard and Telemark. It was both a pleasure and a privilege to represent the interests of the East.

State of the Nation:

Executive Director Mark Dorsey provided industry statistics and drew some reassuring conclusions, noting that despite the slow economic recovery which shows itself in the lowest number of visits since 1991 and retain sales figures off as much as 12%, the number of lesson visits at US resorts increased as a percent of overall traffic.

By the (industry) numbers:

visits: -16% at 51 million (NSAA)

lesson visits: -8.6%lessons as a % of visits: +7.6%

That lesson visits outperformed both retail numbers and visits is a strong indication that we provide value to our resorts, bringing money to the bottom line at a time when other traditional revenue sources are not performing up to expectations.

Mark went on to note that the National survey showed that the strong majority of members feel that PSIA-AASI is a good value. The survey also pointed out that divisional affiliation is one of the stronger variables related to member satisfaction, showing itself to be more important than the dues increase in impacting overall satisfaction. This suggests that the factors that influence satisfaction are less economically sensitive than we had assumed.

Exploration of this area will be a focus of future strategic planning — and surveys. The information gathered helps to provide insight into our diverse membership. Geography, age, full/part time status, certification level and years of experience are a few of the ways in which we differ as members. Understanding how such a diverse group assesses value — and our goal is to provide good value — is an ongoing effort. I appreciate the willingness of the Eastern membership to participate in the survey process and hope that you will continue to do so, since it provides texture for the discussion and ensures that the recommendations and decisions that are made truly represent your interests.

Elections:

Three board members were elected to serve three year terms from 2012-2015. I was one, elected by the Eastern Division and approved by the National board for a third term. Warren Souther, from the Alaska Division was confirmed as Bill Ellis's successor and Peter Donohue will represent the Rocky Mountain Division. As well, the seated Executive Committee was returned for an additional two year term from 2012-2014:

Chairman of the Board Eric Sheckleton (Northern Rocky Mountain)

• Vice-Chairman John Peppler (Central)

• Secretary Peter Donahue (Rocky Mountain)

Treasurer
 Ed Younglove (Northwest)

In honor of Ray Allard's last meeting as Past President, the Board recognized him for extraordinary service to the organization. During his presidency, Ray oversaw the decoupling of PSIA-AASI from the National Ski Patrol (NSP), a long-time partner with whom we had shared administrative functions and staff for operational efficiency. This freed National to reorganize in a way that more directly served our mission and membership, opening up shared data formats and systems that support the ability of the divisions to track members and administer events. This common base has been a key element in the ability of the divisions to effectively collaborate. Ray's wisdom and grace under pressure will continue to serve as an example to us all.

Budget:

Ed Younglove provided the following positive update on our year to date finances vs the fiscal 2012 budget adopted last June:

FY12 ASEA and ASEA-EF income is up 6% from budget, from $3.2 million to $3.4 million, while expenses were up only 2% from budget, from $3.32 million to $3.39 million. He projects the operating budget to finish the year at $48, 831, an improvement of almost $125,000 over the budget approved last June.

The FY13 budget includes an $11 increase in dues and assumes that we will receive the second of three $200,000 grant installments, which will balance the expected 2% decline in membership. The approved budget includes substantial investments in education projects like the movement matrix, IT development and will facilitate a strategic planning session with divisional leadership. It addresses support to these three areas:

- Bringing back more face to face national education meetings as well as investments in education programming and education materials
- Making modest contributions back to our reserves
- Increased investment in membership marketing and communication

An additional $3 increase in dues projected for FY2014 has been deferred for at least one year.

Updates:

- We saw our best year in catalog sales since 2004—by a little over 2%—primarily due to sales of education materials.
- 2012 was a record year for membership, which stood at 31,675 as of May 10.
- The Snowboard Instruction Handbook is in production and will be available this fall
- The Movement Matrix 2.0 includes 20 new snowboard clips, 14 nordic and for the first time, the Adaptive Matrix with 10 clips... all for the one low price of FREE thanks again to the anonymous benefactor who has made this tool available to everyone. Sign up on-line at https:// webportal.thesnowpros.org/Assoc/membermatrix.aspx
- The Entry Level Instructor's Guide will reach four modules this fall with the addition of two new pieces on equipment and movement analysis. Check it out at: http://www.thesnowpros.org/elearningmodules/ module1/
- Certification Updates
 - Following a year long collaborative effort between the divisions and National, updated standards reflecting the "levels of understanding" concept formerly unique to the AASI standards, have been released for AASI, PSIA Alpine, PSIA-AASI Children's Specialist, PSIA Alpine Adaptive, AASI Adaptive Snowboard, PSIA Nordic Cross Country and PSIA Telemark. The new standards are effective for the 2012-2013 season. Both the new and the historical standards can be found on-line on the "certifications" tab on the National website at http://www.thesnowpros.org/index.php/PSIA-AASI/education-station/certification-standards/.
- The Freestyle Specialist working group has circulated draft standards to division representatives and expects to make their final version available in the late summer.
- Education and credentialing policies and procedures that will be applicable across all divisions are well underway.
- Plans are progressing for the release of an all discipline test bank, expected as early as the fall of 2012.
- The New Instructor Guide is a Level I workbook being developed by education leaders from all 9 divisions. The Guide is intended as a Level 1 Exam prep for all disciplines. Look for it on-line this fall on the National website.

Again, it is my pleasure to continue to represent the Eastern Division for another term. I look forward to reporting on the January meeting and welcome discussion and input from all.

Sign up for the event that is right for you!

have been a proud member of AASI since 1998. Every year I look forward to fall when the events calendar comes out! Whether as a newly minted Certified level 1 instructor or now as a member of the Education staff, I enjoy exploring the possibilities of which courses to attend and where each season.

As you look through the schedule, you'll probably notice that a few events might sound similar, such as "intro to trees" and the legendary "trees camp", as well as "skills for riding jumps & rails" and "freestyle camp." With all the choices, you might be trying to decide where you would fit in best. Hopefully this will help.

Freestyle realm: Here you could choose from three different types of events. These are Skills for riding jumps and rails, Freestyle camp, and Freestyle Accreditation (FS 1-3).

Skills for riding jumps and rails: This is a great clinic for those members who do not get to ride park very often, but would like to try. At this clinic, participants begin with basic park skills and progress based on their comfort level. Maybe you are a really skilled free-rider who kills it at speed and can carve a trench that traps small animals, but the idea of a rail is spooky. Perhaps you just want to check out park and rail riding so that you can coach your weekly school group with confidence. Or maybe you are a solid freestyle rider who wants a fun update clinic in your local area. Potentially, in this event, you could expect to take your free ride skills into the park, and then take your freestyle skills back into your everyday riding. You could also expect to take away some really solid freestyle coaching and instructing tactics.

Freestyle camp: This is available in a two day or three day format. Freestyle camp is park and pipe focused with a heavy personal freestyle riding improvement focus. This event is perfect for someone who has ridden park and pipe in the past and wants to step it up within your comfort zone. Often times in this event groups will session a park or feature to build confidence for stepping up to other features that might have been previously out of the comfort zone. Other times groups will just lap the park or the pipe, receive coaching all the while, and just experience freestyle fun. No matter what, challenge by choice is always the rule. If you can swing the third day, you will be happy you did. For 2012-13 these camps can be found at Mt Snow VT, and Seven Springs PA.

Freestyle Accreditation: is for the experienced coach who would like to validate their skill and experience and achieve a nationally recognized accreditation. This event is for someone who is experienced in a park & pipe venue, and coaches primarily in a park & pipe setting. For more information, check the eastern website: psia-e.org.

Steeps & Trees realm: Personally, I love to free ride in the trees and ride the steeps. On this season's schedule you will find a few options here as well.

Intro to trees: This one is all in the name. It's an intro to free riding in-bounds mountain glades and in the woods. Not sure of the difference there? We'll explain at the event. Who is this event a great fit for? It's a great fit for someone who has little or no experience riding in wooded areas but wants to try. Expect to warm up, get loose, and explore some mellow gladed area with the possibility of progressing to more challenging areas within the group's comfort zone. For 2012-13 these camps can be found at Bolton Valley VT, Holimont NY, and Bretton Woods NH. All of these resorts have been chosen due to their most excellent terrain and conditions related to this event.

Trees camp: These events are offered at Jay Peak, VT and Blue Knob, PA and are available in a two day and three day format. Trees camp is a woods and glade riding focused event. Expect to ride woods and glades (conditions permitting) all day long. This is a great event for those members who are comfortable riding intermediate level and beyond glades and woods. Typically there are groups for a wide range of stamina, desire, and ability, Blue Knob has some of the most chaenging terrain in the mid-Atlantic and since it is PA's highest elevated resort it receives more snowstorms than you might expect. Since parking and the lodge are at the top, it makes sense to book an affordable condo with the hopes of getting a big storm during your stay. At Jay, there is legendary tree riding, incredible snow, and even a Tram. There is a lot of area to cover at Jay Peak, and groups hit much of it in two days of trees camp. However, Jay Peak is near Canada, and when you factor in the drive with the great terrain, that third day only makes sense.....

Steeps camp: This event at Stowe is another one of the legendary AASI events. Like the other camps, it is available in a two day and a three day format. Expect to ride some of the steepest open runs in the east (conditions permitting). This is a perfect event for anyone who wants to ride Stowe and go all over the place while receiving personal riding feedback. Steeps camp is a great event for riders who are ready to tackle challenging blue and black runs right off the bat and explore more challenging terrain within the groups' comfort zone as the days go on. It is not out of the question to explore some gladed and woods terrain as well. Typically there are groups for a range of stamina, desire, and ability. There is a ton of terrain to explore at Stowe so if you can swing day three, it will be worth it.

Off-piste assessment: This is a one day event that members can choose to participate in on the third day of the trees camp at Jay or the steeps camp at Stowe. This assessment is a one time event (that is once a member passes it, they do not need to attend the assessment again) and is required for the off-piste event at Smugglers' Notch.

Off-piste at Smugglers' Notch: This awesome event is for very experienced riders who are completely comfortable riding in the woods and glades, in bounds and out of bounds. Expect to ride open trails in bounds only as a means to get to off-piste areas. Smugglers' Notch has some of the most diverse, extensive and accessible off-piste and out of bounds terrain in the east. This event is ideal for members who would like the next step from steeps camp and trees camp.

Backcountry Accreditation: This nationally recognized accreditation is a three part process that begins in November. It is open to any member on any equipment. For snowboarders, a split board, with climbing skins, interface and bindings is required. Snowboarders can also use snowshoes if a split-board is not in your quiver. This accreditation is best for backcountry riding & skiing enthusiasts who are experienced in backcountry touring. For additional information, check the eastern website: psia-e.org.

Hopefully that clears up a few of the events and offers you a better idea as to what to expect from some of the events. As we all know, there are a variety of factors and variables that play into what actually happens during an event, so please take this only as a guideline, and not doctrine, as to what to expect from one of the described events. Whatever you decide to attend this year, from intro events to camps to exam prep events to even an actual certification exam, expect this: good times and good people! In my opinion one of the greatest values of membership is event participation. Hope to see you there!

AASI Advisor Update

Ted Fleischer AASI Advisor

irst, I'd like to welcome and congratulate some folks. We have some new Examiners! Greg Fatigate and Mark Marino who were elevated at June's Board meeting after years of dedication on ETS and Dev Team! Also, elevated to ETS are former Dev Teamers Chance Caswell, Brian Donovan, and Joe Jones. Congrats to All! I'd also like to welcome two former Ed Staff members back to the AASI fold, Rob Baker and Bryan Fielding! Many of you may know Rob as a former National Team guy from AK and CO. Rob is now in our division in NC and is working as the coach for the Duke ski and ride team. Some of the older folks should remember Bryan from back in the day as well. I can't wait to ride with these guys. Glad to have both of you on board with us! A Hearty Welcome!

One of the reasons we have such a great staff is due to the excellent training and Trainers that we have available to us in our division. Tom Vickery helped for many years, and continues to do so. Thanks Tom! KC is now at the helm as Examiner Coach and continues to step up what was already a pretty good game. Glad to have you KC! Terry Duffield has taken the role of Teams Coach to a whole new level and has helped train and prepare many folks for success over his past 3 year term. The level of communication and work he has asked for and received from his Team has been excellent! Thanks Terry!

The position of Teams Coach is one that reopens for hiring after every 3 year term. This is to allow for our qualified brethren to help shape future Examiners. We will soon be hiring a Teams Coach for the next 3 year term.

Identify a student's learning preferences

Bonnie Kolber Snowboard Level 3, CS2 & TM1

Ithough this winter was short on powder days, it was one of my best ever and chock full of educational experiences. As an Eastern Team member and new member of the Ed Staff, I had lots of opportunities (and not a lot of distraction) to understudy events and learn about what makes a good clinic. And by a good clinic, I mean the kind that people go home thinking about and continue learning from down the road.

I admit it, I'm a snowboard geek, and a bookworm too. Which means I've read just about all of the manuals and educational materials, and while it's all interesting, sometimes it's hard to understand just how it applies to snowboarding and teaching. I mean, it's a lot of information, and are we going to make a checklist for each lesson to make sure we reach every type of intelligence, learning style, and preference out there or what? Sometimes I find the best way to learn it is to D0 it.

My best training ground for applying what I was learning from clinicians "on the road" was at my home mountain. I have loads of respect for the staff members who attended my clinics who were eager to not only receive feedback from me, but also give me feedback as a clinician and candidate for the National Team.

Something I've realized working with students and staff is that someone's learning preference is not always the best way for them to learn. For example, a "doer" who just wants to keep going at it, but keeps crashing, is not learning anything but how to wreck themselves. It is time to integrate other learning styles for this person.

First, it is important to acknowledge their style. You can tell them "I appreciate your enthusiasm and spirit, but hear me out." Now you can incorporate verbal feedback, a demonstration, or specific cues about what they might be feeling, while reassuring them that you will give them another chance to "just ride." An effective doer learns by doing, and this takes sensitivity from the instructor to bring in elements from other learning styles.

Likewise, people who tend to be "watchers" or "thinkers" often learn best when pressed to do. Again, this takes sensitivity. One of my best lessons of the season was when I pressed too hard, and realized how important it is to communicate intention and keep checking in to make sure your student doesn't check out.

Our job as instructors is to be mindful of how our students like to learn, but offer them a wide array of instructional strategies to meet their needs. Have they been watching but haven't tried it? Have they tried it but not gotten feedback? Can they feel a difference when they get it and when they don't? Where do they feel it?

Identify a student's learning preferences, but realize that there is something to be gained by not tailoring a lesson exclusively to them. Make sure your students feel comfortable, but don't be afraid to challenge them to step outside of their comfort zone. Finding the balance can be challenging, but when it is achieved it can lead to real growth and learning, and a really good snowboard lesson, I mean the kind people tell their friends about and keep learning from down the road. Just like we tell our students, the more you practice the easier it gets.

Some events have limited attendance this season – be sure to sign-up early!

Please note that there are a few events with limited attendance on the schedule this year.

These events may fill BEFORE the event deadline. If you want to be assured a spot, sign up for these events asap! These clinics are identified with an asterisk in the "key" column of the schedule.

Adaptive Program Updates

Kathy Chandler, PSIA-E Adaptive Advisor

New Adaptive Video for 2012 -2013

he Adaptive Board of Examiners (ABOE) is excited to announce that we will be producing a new adaptive video to be available this fall, early winter. It is a video that spans the beginning stages for each of he disciplines and something that we hope to build on and expand into more specific or more advanced techniques for the future. This has not been done since 1994 and although that video was right on and some of the techniques still apply, we have some new methodologies and new equipment that needs to be addressed. It is designed for use by adaptive programs or individuals within and will be sold through the PSIA office

We spent many days last season doing filming of the different disciplines and their beginning phases. Now we are putting it all together and making it current using the Stepping Stones concept. Unfortunately last season was not a great snow year for the east, so we were limited in our terrain. The western programs will be impressed with what we can do on so little snow.

This is all made possible with a grant from the Gibney Family Foundation to the adaptive program, STRIDE in New York. We are happy to create and produce this with help from Event Video Productions, (EVP) and Birch Tree Productions. Stay tuned. We plan to preview it at The National Academy at Breckenridge, December 2 – 9, 2012. Come see it there.

National Academy 2012

This year the National Academy will be December 2-9 at Breckenridge Colorado. This is a one of a kind event that brings in the best clinic leaders and examiners in the country from all of the PSIA Divisions to teach instructors from all over the world. The networking opportunities are fabulous while learning new things and trying new pieces of equipment. The clinics cover the most current methodologies we are using throughout the country. Equipment vendors of all of the adaptive equipment available to programs are there and provide access to experience the equipment personally.

This year we will have over seventy Wounded Warriors, most all new skiers, to teach for the week. We do over 100 lessons a day. They come with their wives, friends, family or significant others. They come to us from many of the biggest VA and Rehab Hospitals throughout the country, including Walter Reed, San Diego, Brook Army Medical, Lejune, Tampa VA, Palo Alto VA, and Team Semper Fi. Each year there is also a group of men and women who come from England who can't get enough of skiing in Colorado. Last year we had six Wounded Warriors who were triple amputees and many others with significant disabilities. If you are a PSIA Level II instructor or strong Level I with 10 years experience, (and a letter of support from your Director) you can come and teach for us and DSUSA will provide your housing and other benefits. The opportunity to teach with some of the best instructors in the country is immeasurable. Some say they learn more doing the teaching than in the clinics, and some do a combination of both.

This event is unsurpassed in its value to you as an instructor for people with disabilities. For more information and to register you should go to the website at www.dsusa.org. It is the most exciting and fun experience and if there is any chance you can do it, you should come.

Adaptive Events for this year

We have lots of new and exciting programs on the schedule for the adaptive sector. The Adaptive Board of Examiners (ABOE) has made a commitment to the membership to increase the opportunities for learning. This year we will be offering: ATS focus for Adaptive Methods, an Adaptive Trainers Track, Tactics for integrating learning differences, Skier Improvement for sit down skiers, Tethering Improvement, Adding the Slider to your inventory, and two experiential events one for mono-skiers and one for guiding upper level visually impaired students. With participation from members form many of our eastern programs these promise to be fun and exciting to explore areas we have only touched on in the past.

We have many Level I exams scheduled in Vermont, Massachusetts, New York, Virginia, and Maine, so hopefully one will fit your schedule and you can join us on the certification track. The Level II and Level III exam will be held at Sunday River in the end of the season. We are holding only one exam at this level to try to build our numbers of participants. It is a better experience for all if the groups are a little larger. To help those who are on the fence or want to better prepare there is an Exam Prep course this year.

In the snowboard arena, the educational events are; Exploring Snowboard Techniques, Adaptive Equipment Options for Snowboards and an Exam Prep course. We will hold another Level I exam and are hoping to hold our first Level II exam, both to be held at Windham, NY on March 2-3. We now have quite a few Level I adaptive snowboard instructors and are hoping to get a group to start their Level II process.

We are looking forward to a good snow year and hope you will join us on the snow for some fun and exciting events.

New Educational Workshops for the Adaptive Schedule

n an effort to increase the number of opportunities for training adaptive educators we have added a few new courses for the upcoming season. We are excited to tell you about them and hope you will join us in continuing to expand your knowledge in this field. It starts with:

Adaptive Trainers Track at Gunstock Mountain in New Hampshire on January 5-6. This clinic is designed for the trainers of your program to help them stay abreast of what is expected at exams, what the most current adaptive teaching methodologies are, and to share experiences and practices that work.

Tactics for Integrating Learning Differences at Mountain Creek in New Jersey and Pats Peak in New Hampshire are both scheduled on January 12 – 13. This clinic is for those who teach adaptive and alpine or snowboard as well. Each year we have more and more children with learning differences who are placed into a regular alpine or snowboard group lesson. That is what they are used to at school and many do not want to be singled out "special." How does the instructor deal with this type of learning differences in a class? We will explore how can we as adaptive instructors can help our alpine or snowboard schools with tactics that work.

Adding the Slider to Your Inventory is on January 28 -29 at two locations, Greek Peak Adaptive Sports in New York or Stratton Mountain in Vermont. The slider, while not a new piece of equipment is new to the exam requirements at all levels. There are many schools that do not have a slider and this clinic will give instructors an opportunity

Open Invitation to the BIG TOP!

CHILDREN'S ACADEMY INVITATION

Jeffrey W "Jake" Jacobsen Children's Committee Chair, ACE Team Member

ttend what you say? Why the 2012 PSIA-E Children's Academy of course! Scheduled for Monday, December 10 – Wednesday, December 12, 2012 at Okemo Mountain Resort in Ludlow, VT this event is the premier Children's Education Event of the Season!

Loosely themed this year, the Academy will provide a myriad of offerings for all levels of Ski, Snowboard, or Tele instructor. There will be so much going on that the Eastern Children's Committee believes this event could take place under the "Big Top"...3 Rings and all.

The 3 Rings will feature

- Freestyle Education in the Novice Zone
- Media--- soliciting feedback with the use of technology such as video, helmet cams, ipads, etc.
- Using Props; we preach this but are not practicing enough of it
- CTEC Contemporary Tricks for Educating Children (with relevancy)

OOPS that's four rings. This is just a snapshot of what you will find when you attend this event. As always the ACE Team will offer a "Train the Trainer" track leaving attendees with a plan for teaching students under the age of 16 and coaching this to your staff.

Also featured at the Eastern Children's Academy will be an Alpine & AASI Level I Exams. You must sign up specifically for these exam/academy events in advance.

In the minds of the Eastern Children's Committee and the ACE Team this is a "must attend" annual event to spark the energy for the season. The goal is for each attendee to walk away with something that will be included in their teaching during the 2012/2013 winter season.

What do we do it for?

Jeffrey W "Jake" Jacobsen PSIA-E Children's Committee Chair ACE Team Member

Then I first started teaching skiing during the 1989/1990 winter season I was nervous getting started and quickly realized how little I knew about making a pair of skis go left, right, and stop once in a while. I was very fortunate to be teaching at a resort (Gunstock, in Gilford, NH) where the opportunities to attend training were quite extensive. Like most of you, once I got hooked there was no turning back, I think they called us training junkies.

Once I decided to join PSIA-E as an "Associate" member, I was on the road to certification. I attended clinics at my resort and PSIA-E educational events that I thought would help me prepare for my Level II exam and subsequently my Level III, and ACE Team try out. What makes me proud of my journey through the PSIA-E certification path is that the process of preparation was the most valuable to me. Ultimately it has been the guests with whom I have skied over the years that have benefitted the most. I was thrilled to achieve my Level II Certification but I was happiest with how my lessons changed as I was preparing for the exam...I got better in terms of technical knowledge, presentation style, and adaptation of my lessons to the guests in front of me.

My point for telling you this is that in my opinion "it wasn't just the pin"! It was the process and the outcome of improving the quality of lesson I was presenting.

So really, what is the point? I have been looking through the 2012/2013 Alpine Event Schedule and see roughly 60 Exams on a schedule of more than 270 events. The Educational events represent 78% of the total Alpine event schedule. This tells me that my perception of my experience mirrors the goal of the organization in that the process of education and professional development is the primary objective/ goal. The certification process and achieving levels of certification is an outcome of this professional development, a chance to be recognized for having attained a level of knowledge and expertise. But throughout the process of demonstrating the ability to meet the standards of certification, the member gains the knowledge and skills to perform at a higher level...Teach Better Lessons. This to me is the ultimate goal. With the extensive list of educational opportunities available to us this allows us to achieve success in our lessons while proving to ourselves and our industry colleagues that we've acquired the knowledge and skills required for certification.

Action Item for your list - Attend educational events regularly, improve your ability to deliver meaningful lessons to your guests, have fun, and attain a level of certification along the way.

to understand its function, most appropriate uses, set-up and the opportunity to experience firsthand the limitations and benefits.

Experiential Blind Guiding for Advanced Skiers will be held at Sugarloaf/USA in Maine on March 9 – 10. This course will give instructors an opportunity to gain experience in guiding advanced visually impaired skiers. We will have some experienced visually impaired skiers join us. They will be able to give you some feedback on your abilities and style. We will be skiing intermediate to expert terrain.

We also have some newer topics that include:

- Exploring Snowboard Techniques which explores the Snowboard exam process as well as what is current and working for teaching adaptive snowboarding.
- Skier Improvement for Sit Down Skiers which is designed for helping the more advanced sit down skiers.
- Improving your Tethering Skills. Tethering is something that is always improving and we are finding new methods to make it easier on us and better for our students.

We hope you will join us this year for some of the new educational events that will help you improve your skills. ■

Mickey Stone PSIA-E Nordic Coordinator

Pell the summer has been as hot as the third and fourth week in March 2012 where most New England States received 80 plus temperatures. Currently over 65% of the states are in drought and have had their warmest summer on record. Here in Vermont we have had the highest average mean temperatures for the last 8 months. GOOD NEWS could be on the way. It is suppose to be an El Nino year with the Jet Stream splitting in the southern tier of the US and sloping up the I 95 corridors. So southern New England and the Mid Atlantic states will be seeing some major storms. The Northeast will have cold temperatures from a mild high south of the Artic and Greenland which can lead to snow also with passing fronts from the Northern tier Jet Stream which will pass through southern Canada. So keep your fingers crossed and as usual take each day as it comes and enjoy it.

Something to keep an eye on this October: Please browse the website for the Vermont Ski Museum at http://www.vtssm.com. The museum is putting together a Nordic History of Vermont and New England as well as old letters, written and documented history, gear timeline, and a Nordic Hall Of Fame also. Vermont has been a first in snowmaking for Nordic, the first Nordic groomers and a host of Telemark to Track athletes through the ages. Check it out!

At the summer BOD meeting Nordic received an $800 Action Plan to further improve and detail our on line How To Teach Telemark Movie. We are planning on more video shots in the Advanced area. Currently we have a lot of powder shots from out West prepping for National Team Tryouts. The video will add steep and icy, drops, trees and more New England skiing with informational tips mostly on the tactics side of things. There will be an extended bump section also. Look for that some time to be up this early summer on our website. Any ideas or suggestions please feel free to contact Mickey Stone through the office. A big Thank-you to the Board of Directors for this allocation.

This summer our Telemark Development Team staff, which consists of Shannon Belt, Karen Dalury and Keith Rodney, was tasked with creating new questions connected to the new manuals for the written Telemark Exam. We then sent it out to the Examiner staff so they had a chance to add to it. I can say comfortably that we will now have an updated exam and it will be on-line for you to take before coming to our exam on hill. This will allow us to have more time to view your teaching movement analysis and overall knowledge as well as your skiing for telemarking. Look for this to be on-line some time in October. A big Thank-you to the Dev Teamers and the Examining staff. None of this could be done with out the help, support and administration of our great office staff. Thanks to all. No guarantee that there will not be any intense discussions on any of these but you may not need to know what a Lurk or a Stave is anymore.

We did do a trip to Patagonia all the way down to Ushuaia, it is the capital of Tierra del Fuego Province, Argentina. It is commonly regarded as the southernmost city in the world. Look for future great summer trips to South America.

We are fortunate here in Vermont to have the Underhill Firing Range owned by the US Army. They have machine made snow, manmade ice climbing walls, Biathlon loops and paved rollerblading loops for off-season races and training. This past August, Lanny Barnes won both the sprint and pursuit at North American Rollerski Biathlon Championships, and sister Tracy also had two podiums; the only racer able to break up the Barnes party was Quebec's Claude Godbout, who placed second in the sprint.

So get inspired and start or continue your training so you can be in ski shape ahead of time and not use the same old adage that I will ski myself into shape this year. Enjoy the outdoors!

Snowsports School Management

"The Good Old Days"

Why go to the Snowsports Management Seminar?

Debbie Goslin, SnowSports School Director, Kissing Bridge SnowSports School Management Committee Chair

t a recent instructor summer event, the conversation evolved, as usually happens, to the "Good Old Days" of ski teaching and how things have really changed. Ever the director, I asked what they thought had "changed"? First mentioned was "après" and group camaraderie - the days when an instructor could carry a flask and share it on the chairlift or when the instructors would move a hot tub to the area and kick back on a Saturday night! OK, I agreed, my first year as an instructor I had a bottle of Wild Irish Rose wine in my locker that I used to "warm up" in between lessons. Those days certainly have passed with our litigious society and the desire to set a good example. That said, it seems as though there really was more camaraderie at the ski area; instructors and their families stayed around for a picnic or to ski together, instead of leaving after their last lesson. Second mentioned was NYS and the onerous Department of Labor laws that have challenged instructors and managers alike. Third was the difference in today's students. In the old days when someone really struggled we would encourage them, spend additional time with them (or sometimes suggest bowling (2) dismiss the class and move on. Today, those similar students are on their cell phones txting their friends with a list of what they think the instructor is doing right and wrong; the phone rings in the director's office and the process of calming down the parent and student begins.

To move on from the negative, I asked them "Do you remember your best lesson as an instructor or a student?" This conversation took off with good stuff! And that is what I think should be the mantra of a snowsports school; make the lesson fun and memorable! I asked those in the group that teach primarily children, "How do you know it was a good lesson?" Answers flew:

- The kids asked their parents after the lesson when they were coming back?
- One student cried because the lesson was over!
- The group as a whole fist-bumped!
- · Smiles all around!
- · Tired, happy kids!

So, as managers how do we facilitate the "good stuff" for our staffs? How do we make our lessons fun and memorable? Maybe as fall approaches and winter nears we can all sit back and ponder and present some new thoughts to our staffs at our Fall meetings. In case anyone cares, my best lesson was as a student at Glenwood Acres, with an instructor named Victor who taught our group how to ski moguls. To this day, when I bring a group down that same hill I pause, remember, and smile and then proceed to teach them what Victor taught us one Monday night a long time ago...

Do you want to continue to share, learn and enjoy? If you are a school director or trainer then the 2012 Snowsports School Management Seminar is for you.

This year's Snowsports School Management Seminar will be held at Mount Snow, VT, on December 3 - 5, 2012. The Snowsports Management Committee has put together a great schedule of educational sessions and on snow clinics for this year's event. A terrific line up of educators is being scheduled including numerous National Team members. For more information check out the information in the "Featured Events" article in this SnowPro.

* NEW * Vertical Drop Events

During these courses you will be skiing a minimum of 10,000 vertical feet per day. This is not a vertical guarantee and you may ski more or less than this based on the mountain and conditions while still allowing for educational opportunities. Members registering for a Vertical Drop event must be in strong physical condition and be able to ski long distances over the course of the entire two day event. These events are identified by the symbol "V" in the Key section of the events schedule.

PSIA-AASI Eastern Division Event Participant Safety Policy

Skiing and riding are athletic and physically demanding activities. It is the expectation of PSIA-AASI Eastern Division that each participant attending an event or exam shall possess the requisite level of fitness and stamina to participate safely, on all appropriate terrain and at a pace consistent with other members of the group. As such, PSIA-AASI Eastern Division reserves the right to have education staff reassign participants in any event that may pose a risk to themselves or others or consistently impede the progress of the group to another, more skill and fitness-appropriate event. In such a situation, an appropriate event will be recommended and the member may be transferred to that event at no charge (other than any difference in event costs) or a full refund of the originally registered event will be provided.

PSIA-AASI Eastern Division Event Participant Safety Policy

Skiing and riding are athletic and physically demanding activities. It is the expectation of PSIA-AASI Eastern Division that each participant attending an event or exam shall possess the requisite level of fitness and stamina to participate safely, on all appropriate terrain and at a pace consistent with other members of the group. As such, PSIA-AASI Eastern Division reserves the right to have education staff reassign participants in any event that may pose a risk to themselves or others or consistently impede the progress of the group to another, more skill and fitness-appropriate event. In such a situation, an appropriate event will be recommended and the member may be transferred to that event at no charge (other than any difference in event costs) or a full refund of the originally registered event will be provided.

PSIA-AASI Eastern Division Event Participant Safety Policy

Skiing and riding are athletic and physically demanding activities. It is the expectation of PSIA-AASI Eastern Division that each participant attending an event or exam shall possess the requisite level of fitness and stamina to participate safely, on all appropriate terrain and at a pace consistent with other members of the group. As such, PSIA-AASI Eastern Division reserves the right to have education staff reassign participants in any event that may pose a risk to themselves or others or consistently impede the progress of the group to another, more skill and fitness-appropriate event. In such a situation, an appropriate event will be recommended and the member may be transferred to that event at no charge (other than any difference in event costs) or a full refund of the originally registered event will be provided.

Finding Your Pink Yeti

Candace Charles, Education and Programs Associate am returning to the PSIA-AASI Eastern Division office after two months off, and like many of my fellow snow sports enthusiasts, I spent a lot of time cycling. Whether it was a fast, hard ride on a road bike, or a day spent exploring new trail systems with friends on a mountain bike, or even the occasional jaunt on a powder blue hybrid, equipped with a whicker basket and bell, along a mellow bike path, I rode. If you are counting, that is three different bikes, and three very different types of cycling. Depending on my mood, or who I am with, or what I am doing, each one serves a purpose and I enjoy and feel comfortable on all three, but it was not always that way. Unlike skiing, which as far back as I can remember, I enjoyed and was comfortable doing.

I started skiing more or less from birth, so I do not remember becoming comfortable with the sport and the equipment, but I imagine if I was picking up the sport now as an adult, it would have went something like my entry into the world of cycling.

I began biking in 2009. At the time, I was doing a lot of spinning and decided I wanted to take it outside. Upon explaining this to the salesperson at my local bike shop, I was sold the aforementioned hybrid bicycle, which after a handful of 30 to 50-mile bike rides on roads; it occurred to me that I needed to be more specific about my cycling goals for my next bike purchase. So the next bike I purchased was a road bike, light as a feather, and for the first ride or so, wobbly and unsteady, with what felt like an extremely aggressive body position. (Remember, I had been riding a bike that I could literally sit straight up on.) But as I got more comfortable with the road bike, I learned to love how nimble it was on hills, and how comfortable the body position was for longer distances. I was all set; I was clearly a cyclist! All of my bike needs were covered, or so I thought.

It was right around this time that some people I knew invited me to come mountain biking with them. What? Are you kidding me? This requires ANOTHER bike? Why don't you guys come on a road ride with me? But I was interested, mountain biking looked really fun, the cooler, more extreme way to ride a bike. So begrudgingly at first, and then with improved morale after I found a deal on a hot pink Yeti ASR frame, I assembled a mountain bike. My first outing on the mountain bike left me questioning if I had made a horrible mistake spending more money on yet another bike. It took a little bit to get used to the feeling of having shocks, and I was not even off the carriage path and on an actual trail before I was bleeding and crumbled on some rocks. However, I stuck with it, (I have the scars to prove it), partially because of the investment I had made in the sport, partially because I liked the people I was doing it with, but mostly because of the exhilaration I felt after clearing a technical section of trail with my skin still attached. As I stuck with it, and got comfortable, I began to develop a passion for mountain biking, and I believe it will be something I will do as long as my body allows. I still enjoy my other bikes, but finding my Pink Yeti and discovering what it allows me to do under the umbrella of "biking" is what has made me stick with the sport.

As a newbie to a sport you have certain perceptions. In order to "bike" you need "A BIKE." Sounds easy enough. So when you enter a shop and gleefully announce "I want to buy a bike!," that's exactly what you will get. A utilitarian, self propelled, mechanized vehicle. A jack of all tra des, master of none. You know, that bike that everyone has in his garage...right next to the skis.

As snow sport instructors, we take for granted how comfortable we are with our equipment, what it is for, and what its drawbacks are. However, we are also in a unique position to ease new skiers and riders through the utilitarian equipment phase. Everyone has to start with something, and entry level equipment is just that. It gives a taste of what is possible. We, as instructors can explain the strengths of their current equipment, but also explain some of the drawbacks, which if someone is progressing, they may be frustrated by, but do not realize why. Through finding out what people enjoy and what their goals are, we can explain the more specialized options available in a way that makes people excited to invest in the sport and keep coming back. Once people are comfortable enough to slide a bit, and want to take the next step we can help steer them away from "the powder blue hybrid" and towards "the hot pink Yeti"... pair of skis that might get to live in the house, and not the garage.
