A Call for Action

By Ron Kubicki, President PSIA-AASI Eastern Division

Joint Resolution calls for member representation, membership value & member recognition issues

ast month your Eastern Division Board of Directors hosted an important group of leaders from three of the largest PSIA/AASI divisions in the country during our fall Board meeting. Joining us were Jack Burns; president of PSIA-AASI Northwest; Kirsten Huotte, Executive Director for the Northwest Division; Chris Katzenberger, president of PSIA/AASI Intermountain; Joel Munn, president of the PSIA-AASI Rocky Mountain Division and Dana Forbes, the Rocky Mountain Division Executive Director.

The meeting of our four divisions was inspired by ongoing issues and concerns of mutual interest we share relative to our collective relationships with the National association of PSIA and AASI (technically known as ASEA – the American Snowsports Education Association).

Most of you are probably aware that PSIA/AASI is technically two organizations: Your Division, in our case PSIA/AASI-E, the Eastern division, and the second organization is "National" or the American Snowsports Education Association (ASEA). When you pay your dues, while you write one check, part of your payment goes to your Eastern Division in Albany (currently $66) and part goes to the national association in Lakewood, Colorado (currently $61).

Both organizations serve you in complementary roles and both have much to offer you in the way of services, programs and benefits. That said, our Eastern Division Board of Directors has expressed concerns in recent years about the rapidly escalating cost of the combined membership dues you pay and, in particular, to the more than doubling of National association dues from $30 in 2001-02 to $61 in 2012-13.

ASEA has become a very expensive organization to operate and an increasingly expensive organization in which you belong and participate. We have read your comments in our Eastern Division membership surveys that you feel the costs both in your wallet and on your calendar for the time and money it takes to become and remain a member. The increases in National operating costs have had a significant impact on Eastern Division operations as well. In an attempt to minimize the cost impact to you as members we have not increased our event fees in the past two seasons and this season we did not assess our typical small incremental dues increase to help us absorb the rising costs of doing business. Instead we have reduced our expenses by more than $140,000 during the past two budget cycles and made a commitment to operate as efficiently as possible on your behalf. We are calling on our partners at the national association to do the same; in short, to operate more efficiently and to offer you the services that you value the most as a member.

It was in this spirit and with this objective that we hosted our divisional guests on the weekend of October 13-14 in the Albany area. It was a positive and productive meeting and we enjoyed both healthy debate and unhealthy food (no thanks to Michael's dastardly menu choices!). Over the course of three days we reviewed, discussed and ultimately agreed upon a Joint Resolution of our four divisions that both stated our concerns and made specific requests to the National association Board of Directors on action steps to address these concerns. Your Eastern Board of Directors ratified the Joint Resolution on October 14, Rocky Mountain followed on October 17, Northwest on October 18 and the Intermountain Division on October 22. The "JR" was then sent to Eric Sheckleton as the ASEA Board Chairperson on October 23 with a requested response date of December 1. (Note: Go to page 2 of this issue to review Eastern Division Vice President Eric Jordan's summary of his discussions with Eric Sheckleton during the National Strategic Sessions on October 25-27 at Copper Mountain, CO).

What follows below for your reference is the "preamble" of the Joint Resolution that basically describes who we are and why this document is important. That is followed by excerpts from the Joint Resolution of specific issues and calls to action that most directly relate to you as a member.

Joint Resolution of the Eastern, Intermountain, Northwest and Rocky Mountain Divisions of PSIA & AASI

PREAMBLE

As of June 30, 2012, our Divisions represent more than 23,500 individual members, over 74% of the total membership. We share mutual interests in serving those members comprehensively and effectively to facilitate their professional and personal development as snowsports instructors. We also share the goal in attracting non-member snowsports instructors so that they may also benefit from the combined resources, tools, benefits and services offered by our Divisions and ASEA. Our goal in attracting, retaining and serving our members is to allow all snowsports instructors to better assist the larger snowsports industry and the guests our members are privileged to serve.

We have serious concerns about our collective direction. In recent years we have found ASEA to have limited response of these very genuine concerns. We feel this indifference may arise in part

A Summary of the National Strategic Workshop

Eastern and National leadership make progress on working relationship

By Eric Jordan, PSIA/AASI Eastern Division Vice President

t the request of our president, Ron Kubicki, along with our ASEA Board Rep Bill Beerman I attended and represented our Eastern Division over the dates of October 25 – 27 at the National Strategic Workshop held at Copper Mountain, CO. I want to thank Bill for making introductions and paving the way for me to get involved in the discussions and make a contribution. Overall, these sessions proved to be extremely productive and brought all 9 divisions much closer together throughout the 3 days.

I would say that clearly the Eastern Division was the catalyst in getting the ball rolling on discussing the concerns with the latest draft affiliation agreement. I was able to continuously draw references back to the specific concerns of the Joint Resolution (JR) and how the two documents go hand and hand. ASEA was very open to our feedback and appeared genuinely engaged in addressing our concerns. Right from the beginning of the meeting, it was clear that ASEA heard one of our main concerns outlined in the JR loud and clear. ASEA National Chairperson Eric Sheckleton immediately stepped up to the plate and fully re-engaged himself in the process throughout the entire weekend.

Based on our lead role in outlining the concerns to the National BOD and Division Presidents, I was asked to sit in on the rewrite of the national/divisional agreement along with ASEA Executive Director Mark Dorsey, Eric Sheckleton and National President's Council Chairperson Bill Stanley. Here is a summary of how some of the Joint Resolution items got addressed in the revised national/divisional agreement as well as some of the language changes we requested based on our evaluation of the original draft agreement.

- One key revision that had an immediate impact on an important Joint Resolution item was ASEA willingness to eliminate all language that stated or implied that we were bound by their bylaws and policy and procedures. That alone I felt was a major accomplishment.
- Another key concern of ours detailed in the JR was the issue of transparency. In the revised national/divisional agreement all confidentiality references have been removed and in its place is a new sectioning addressing transparency of all agreements between divisions and ASEA
- Sponsorship concerns were also addresses and language was added to state that divisions are encouraged to secure divisional sponsor opportunities

- Dues The national/divisional agreement now clearly states that each party sets its own dues rates versus how it read before and tied us to the National Policy & Procedures.
- Events/National Standards The agreement now clearly states that divisions have sole control over the format and process of all events and that the divisions will collaborate with ASEA to develop the National Standards.

As you can see from the above changes, ASEA was very open to addressing our concerns. I also had the opportunity to review the entire Joint Resolution with Eric and Mark one on one so that they could better understand our position on each item. I made it very clear to the National BOD and all Presidents that we would not be executing any national/divisional agreement until ASEA responded to the Joint Resolution and laid out their road map to address our areas of concern. I was assured by ASEA that they plan to respond to the JR well before our deadline of December 1, 2012.

I was able to get some additional insight on where ASEA stands on some of the other items of the resolution that are of importance to our division:

- National Snowsports School Management Committee: They are 100% behind reinstating this committee since it last was active in 2008. This is something Eastern Division management and volunteer leadership has been pushing for since the last time such a group was activated (briefly) in 2007-08.
- Membership Development and Retention: ASEA is currently interviewing for this position and plan to hire a Direct of Membership within the next 60 days. This is another item we have been calling for during the past several years ownership and energy devoted toward membership development at the national level.
- Member recognition and reward: National leadership is aware of the concern that veteran members have regarding the level of recognition they receive from the general public and from resort management and they are looking for ways to improve in this area. Michael Berry (NSAA CEO) gave an insightful presentation that related to this and had some powerful data regarding the low percentage of actual customers who are satisfied with their lesson and actually would refer or promote their friends to take lessons. Michael's data centered on a key factor called the "net promoter score". ASEA plans to work with NSAA to better understand this data since this would have a huge effect on

- how resort managers would view the reward and recognition of its instructors. The bottom line is that if resort managers see hard data that tells them that instructors are driving the numbers they would be more inclined to give more reward and recognition.
- Governance: A task force will be set up and working by March 1 but ASEA does not think it is realistic to expect recommendations by March 1 but certainly thinks March 1 would be a good date for a progress report that includes a more detailed time line.

We also did spend some time discussing the idea of a "balanced scorecard approach" to assessing our future success. For the most part, the entire event focused around the revised agreement and specific areas of the Joint Resolution. I believe the ASEA certainly stepped up to the plate in recognizing and addressing our concerns. It was very evident to me that they view us as a very important partner and a big contributor to the overall success of the organization.

In closing, I wanted to share with you my thoughts on Eric Sheckleton and his involvement in the weekend. Eric was instrumental in creating the "we" atmosphere and he was clearly vested in the process. Without his involvement this weekend, I do not think we would have achieved all that we did. The goal is now to have a final version of a national/divisional agreement reviewed and approved by all divisional Boards of Directors by the end of 2012. I think that is both an admirable and achievable goal.

Personally, I appreciated and enjoyed the opportunity to join Bill Beerman at Copper Mountain and represent your interests in a professional and productive manner.

2013 Board Elections for PSIA-E Regions 3, 4 and 7

Overview for Members and Candidates

t is time for interested members in Region 3 (CT, MA, RI) Region 4 (NJ, PA) and Region 7 (VA, WV, NC and states south of PA) to declare their candidacy for the Board of Directors for the next term of office. Per the Bylaws and our staggered regional election process, Regions 3, 4 and 7 are up for election in early 2013. Following is an overview of this process. We encourage you to review this and get involved!

- Members interested in running for a Board seat must fill out and submit the candidacy form on the next page. It must be postmarked and sent via U.S. Mail to the Albany office no later than December 28, 2012. No one is permitted to run for more than one position; to do so will invalidate the form. Late candidacy forms will not be accepted.
- 2. Candidates are not allowed to send mailings (via post or e-mail) to voters in their Region. To do so will disqualify the candidate(s) involved. The winter issue of the SnowPro (out late-January) will include comprehensive candidate profiles and will serve as the official communication of candidate messages to voters in each electing region. In addition, there will be a dedicated web page for the election including candidate profiles and the ability for members to cast a secure vote online.
- The positions open include two Board seats for each of the three regions of PSIA-E up for election in 2013 (Regions 3, 4 and 7).
- Elections for regional Board representatives are for three (3) year terms (beginning April 1, 2013 and concluding March 31, 2016).
- 5. A position for which there is no candidate will be filled by Board appointment after the election.
- All submitted candidacy forms will be acknowledged by e-mail. Any concerns about confirmation must be resolved before the deadline.
- Qualifications for the Board seats: Must be a certified Level 1, 2 or 3 member in your fourth year of continuous membership. Complete qualifications in section 12.3 of association bylaws (available at www.psia-e.org). Must also meet the requirements of item #9 below.
- All members in good standing as of December 31 of each year may vote in the subsequent regional election. The Eastern Division of PSIA & AASI

is divided into seven geographic regions (see "Around the Regions" section of the SnowPro). As a member, you may choose to be affiliated with one region - the one in which you work as a snowsports instructor or the one in which you live. This affiliation is for regional mailing and voting purposes. You should affiliate your membership with the region in which you are most active as a snowsports instructor. If you have not previously chosen a regional affiliation (when you joined), the region in which you live would have been assigned as your designated regional affiliation by PSIA-E Bylaws, Section 10.8. In order to change your regional affiliation (to where you work as an instructor) you must notify the division office in writing (e-mail accepted) by December 31 for the subsequent election.

- To hold office in any region, a member must run for election in the region of his/her snowsports work affiliation (Association Bylaws, Article X, Section 10.3.c). You may be declared a member of only one region.
- 10. Upon receipt of all valid candidacy forms and support materials, the division office will compile candidate profiles from all candidates in each electing region. These profiles will appear in the winter issue of the SnowPro (to be sent to members in late January, 2013) along with the official web page dedicated to the 2013 election.
- 11. Voting for the 2013 election will take place online via electronic voting on a secure, dedicated web page. Paper ballots will only be provided to members without online access upon request. Online voting will begin in late January and end on March 15, 2013.
- 12. Official results will be announced at the Spring Rally Annual Membership Meeting on the weekend of March 23-24, 2013, and subsequently via the SnowPro and PSIA-E web site. The terms of the new Board members will begin on April 1, 2013, providing the opportunity for newly elected representatives to communicate with constituents prior to the June 2013 Board meeting.

Position Specifications:

Regional Director (Board) — This will be the person receiving the most votes among all persons running for Board seats within a region. A Regional Director will be responsible for, and will have final authority for, the administration of all regional affairs.

Regional Representative (Board) – This will be the person receiving the second most votes, subject to item (a) below, among all persons in a region running for Board seats. A Regional Representative will be responsible for assisting the Regional Director in regional matters as outlined by the Regional Director. Both the Regional Director and Regional Representative will sit on the Board of Directors and will exercise independent and equal voting rights.

(a) At least one Board member from each region must be a person who is not an examiner or employee of the organization; provided that at least one such individual is on the ballot.

Being an elected or appointed official requires some commitment. We urge members who have the interest, time and capability to submit candidacy forms. Board members should plan on two Board meetings a year (mid-October and mid-June), one or more regional meetings, and involvement in at least one ongoing project. Board Officers serving on the Executive Committee must commit to more time and participation than others.

This is your organization; your participation and your vote CAN make a difference. Get involved!

President's Message

ey Folks, hope you are all getting ready to be - or by the time you get this are - on snow! Lets hope for colossal dumps and great snowmaking temps. But I hope you do take the time to read the very important messages in this issue. The past months since January 2012 have been full of activity on your behalf, tens of conference calls and meetings, literally hundreds of emails; all these involving the volunteer leadership of all nine divisions and the executives of each division and the national office.

I won't repeat what is extensively covered in the cover story or the wrap up of the meeting at Copper Mountain, Oct 25-27, where all nine division presidents attended. Just only to say this could be a historic achievement in finally defining the affiliation between divisional and national services to you. But the point I want to make is how your "team of volunteers" worked diligently through last winter into this fall to improve your professional organization.

In survey and discussion you often make the comment about the value of your membership and we want you to know we take this to heart; as we ourselves are members. What you may not know is that your President, Vice-President, Treasurer, Secretary and every member of the Board of Directors you elect receive no monies for their roles.

These are professional people; business owners, lawyers, craftsman, school directors, resort managers, ed staff, technicians and many more, who use their skill, experience and education to the benefit of PSIA-E/AASI. There have been hundreds of hours in this process, which were gladly and willingly offered, legal fees in billable hours would have easily been in the thousands of dollars, hundreds of hours in travel and meetings, calls in the evening during family time, later stays in the office so west and east coast can speak to each other, drawing up and rewriting documents which are then read and reread by everyone; all to the benefit of the organization, all to make a more efficient and member oriented platform from which to operate.

Without a doubt it is interesting and exciting and we have built a very strong alliance across the country with all the other divisions and national volunteer leadership. You may be proud to know the Eastern division was key in bringing this to fruition; your Board, Executive Committee and Division Executive worked diligently to improve the benefit and value to the ten thousand plus eastern members, and thus to the thirty two thousand plus national membership. We are not done yet, and I hope you question or comment on what you read in this issue, we are keen on keeping you all informed. We are committed to a transparent and honest relationship with all of you.

I know I speak for all officers and entire board; we are proud to work in service to you, as a division; but also to you – because you are the most important member of PSIA-E/AASI your students/guests will meet this season!

You are PSIA-E/AASI, you are the "Pro" in "Go with a Pro"... and we are pleased to work for you. Peace.

How I came to be your new Director of Education & Programs

By Don Haringa, PSIA-AASI Eastern Director of Education & Programs

was reading through my emails on a rainy day this past July when I received one from Mickey Sullivan announcing that he was leaving his position as the Director of Education and Programs for PSIA/AASI-E. My reaction to the news was one of disappointment. Mickey was in his 8th or 9th year as the DOEP, and he had done a terrific job. Many new programs were implemented under his leadership, and he led two Eastern Teams through the National Team tryouts with many of the eastern contingency successfully winning spots on the National Team.

Soon after this another email arrived from the eastern office announcing the opening for a new Director of Education and Programs. The email contained a job description and as soon as I read it I called my wife and told her that I had found my new dream job. Fortunately for me that dream has now become a reality and I wanted to share with you how I got from "there" to "here." It's a love story about snowsports and I suspect it's similar to what a lot of you have felt and gone through as well in your life "on the hill."

I grew up in Ithaca, NY. My free time during the winter was spent ice skating, playing hockey, and occasionally going to a local hill where I would strap a pair of skis onto my snow boots and slide straight down. I'm not sure if it counted as skiing any more than trying to stand on a toboggan, but it was fun. When I was twelve my father "upgraded" my equipment to wooden skis with cable bindings and a pair of lace-up ski boots. Along with the equipment came the announcement that getting up at 4:00am to go to hockey practice was not going to happen and, instead, the family was going to start spending our Saturdays skiing at Greek Peak.

My first day at Greek Peak changed my life. The whole experience was magical! I had a lift ticket that was good on the beginner hill rope tow and that bunny hill became my playground. I spent the day zooming around the hill, hanging onto the icy rope tow, and drinking hot chocolate. Even the lodge was cool. The smell of doughnuts being fried, the smoke from the fireplace, and the sound of Cubco binding boot plates clicking on the stone floor are still vividly etched in my brain. I loved everything about it. (Did I mention that stretch pants were in vogue?)

Each year I skied more than the year before. During my high school years I started to compete in freestyle skiing. After graduating I wanted to stay involved with freestyle and that led to me trying out for the Greek Peak International Ski School so that I could coach freestyle skiing. The tryouts were really interesting, as I discovered that snowplow was "out" and wedging was "in." I became a master at the wedge because coaching freestyle on the weekends made no difference to Gordon Richardson or Pierre Mailhot (Director and Day Supervisor respectively); during the week I was a 1st year line instructor and I taught levels 1-3. The cool part was that I loved teaching beginners. Introducing people to the sport that I loved was awesome!

In 1980 I attained level 2 (known then as Associate Certification) at Loon Mountain. Greek Peak had hired a Technical Director named Bjorn "Swede" Haglund. Swede was really into PSIA and he worked really hard to help us get ready for certification. There were six (I think) of us from Greek Peak at that exam. We all passed and I have a vivid memory of one of our female instructors gleefully throwing Terry Barbour in the air! It was a great experience.

One of the residual effects of going to that certification was realizing that I didn't know as much as I thought I knew. So, I started studying and working on my skiing and in February of 1982 I passed the level 3 (full certified) exam at Elk Mountain. Aside from the exam itself the coolest part of level 3 was meeting and becoming friends with some people that I continue to see at different events, in the small world we call PSIA.

The next season I was lucky enough to land a job as an instructor in Leysin, Switzerland. This was my first experience working on a big mountain and it really helped me improve my skiing. It was also very interesting to compare our technique with the Swiss technique. This was back when we were all in the middle of the Horst Abraham period. Joan Heaton's writings on teaching styles and learning styles were required reading and PSIA was becoming very student oriented. Not so much for the Swiss during that time period. It was quite a contrast. I was reprimanded more than once for not having my group lined up in a straight line!

I returned to the United States and to Greek Peak the next season realizing once again that I didn't know as much about this sport as I thought I did. This led me on a quest to be part of the PSIA-E Education Staff. It took a few tries and the realization that I needed to be teaching full time (I had taken a job managing a ski shop) if I wanted to achieve my goal, and in 1987 I earned a spot on the Development Team. After a couple of years of understudy I was successful at the ETS exam in 1989. In 1991, after several years of giving educational clinics and understudying exams, I was elevated to Examiner. At the end of all that I realized that although I had learned a lot, I hadn't learned nearly enough!

The same year that I was elevated to Examiner I had left the comfort of my hometown (Ithaca, NY) and my job at Greek Peak to go help some friends (fellow Ed Staff members Ron Hawkes and Tom Riford) start the Snowsports School at a new resort that was being built in southern Pennsylvania called Whitetail. One of the coolest things about the Whitetail Snowsports School was that the first instructors were hired without us ever seeing them ski or snowboard. There was a base group of instructors, who had taught at other areas, many of whom were certified, and another group that had never taught before. They were chosen for the job strictly on the merits of their personalities and their ability to communicate.

During my first season at Whitetail I met a girl that stole my heart and never gave it back. Karen and I were married on September 17, 1994. Karen is a level 2 alpine instructor. During our years at Peek'n Peak she was first involved as a trainer for the children's program (Peek'n Kids) and in the winter of 2002 she was promoted to Director of Peek'n Kids. She continued at the helm of this very successful program until we left Peek'n Peak to start this new chapter in our lives. In her "other life" she is a classical musician. She is a percussionist and plays as an extra musician with several major orchestras including the Philadelphia Orchestra, the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, and the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra.

In the fall of 1996 I became the Director of the Snowsports School at Peek'n Peak in Western New York. During my tenure at Peek'n Peak we experienced a major change in the growth of snow-board instruction and the challenges of building a professional snowboard instructor staff, while still maintaining the snowboard culture. On the skiing side of the school there was a built in mentoring system, but the snowboard school was so young that there were very few experienced instructors to be the mentors. I was fortunate to have a very dedicated snowboard supervisor and some talented Where's the Bar?

By Peter Howard, Alpine Education & Certification Chair

t's the question many snow sports professionals often ask. And in late October at Copper Mt. Colorado it is the question that representatives from each division across the country tried to answer. It was early season with just a trail or two to slide on. The resort still hadn't officially opened. We were there on a mission; in the morning we were on snow and in the afternoon we were inside; looking for the bar.

The National Standards are supposed to define where the "Bar" is for Certification levels 1, 2, and 3. The last time the Alpine Standards were up-dated was 2003. I was part of the Alpine Discussion Group, and like the other discussion groups there (Nordic, Snowboard, Adaptive, Freestyle) the purpose was to ensure that across the country the bar was set at the same place in all divisions.

If you have been around for a while you probably know that there are some differences in the exam processes from division to division. Our discussion groups did explore the variables in certification processes. Divisions do need some process differences to best serve their membership demographics. Exam processes across the country are more alike than they are different and due to meetings like this they are moving even closer in format. What is more important is that no matter the details of the process the exams set the bar in the same place.

So let's go back to the National Standards. Like all things written, there is a certain amount of interpretation and latitude in the meaning of words. The Alpine Group spent most of our on-snow time searching through the meaning of "relatively defined arcs from before the fall line" and "two well defined arcs from before the fall line". These two statements are key to the general difference between Certification Levels 2 and 3. These statements also place the height of the bar for each certification standard assuming everyone has the same interpretation of what these statements mean. It's worth remembering that in 2003 shaped skis and all things carving were at their influential height. Ten seasons or so later we have twin tips, rockers and wide rides. Our discussion group agreed to describe the bar height for Level 2 as "two guided arcs, with skis on similar edge angles. The tails of the skis are not pushed out at initiation and the intensity of the movement is similar throughout the phases of the turn. At Level 3 we agreed that in most instances (excepting tactics to deal with difficult snow or terrain) the skis would be tipped before they are twisted, and during the shaping phase, no matter what the ski design was, the skis would be engaged and tracking.

To be sure these are only two statements and only cover the subject of ski performance. We did take considerable time discussing the Teaching Standards. What we found was that we all valued the statements that said "The candidate will be able to.... demonstrate, decide, work with, address, formulate," and other action verbs. The ability to do on snow supercedes some of the other statements that call for conceptual understanding. Basically if you can show and do it, it stands to reason that you understand it. Also the understanding of concepts can likely be tested off snow with written exams or interviews.

The Alpine discussion group did find that The National Standards have some interesting omissions. There is no mention of the use of poles for instance. There is no mention of body mechanics. There is not a lot of specificity about what is meant by dynamics. There are reasons for a certain amount of latitude written into descriptions. It keeps skiing from becoming too "final form" in nature. However all of us agreed that the Alpine National Standards are due for a rethink and rewrite. The Alpine Group will begin the process this winter.

It is worth noting that the Rocky Mountain Division has done a nice job discerning the three-certification standards with their Instructor Development Pathway and their Movement Assessment Model. All the Alpine Discussion Group saw value in these documents as a framework for both candidates and examiners to find the bar. Both of these documents are on the Rocky Mountain web site.

One of the most important obligations PSIA owes its membership is the fair, consistent, and valid maintenance of the Certification Standards and Exam Processes. This trip to the Copper Conference showed the commitment the Divisions and the National Organization have to making sure every member can find out where the bar is and know that it will be at the same height where ever they go. I'll have two arcs with a touch of pole, shaken not stirred.

young instructors who continued to teach after their high school and college years. Many of these instructors have become level 2 and 3 certified, and two of them have become members of the AASI Ed. Staff. These talented snowboard instructors now share their passion for teaching the sport they love with the new instructors. It was really fun to sit in my office and listen to them quizzing each other on technical issues and teaching styles and multiple intelligences as they were prepping for their next exams. One of these talented instructors, AASI ETS and Eastern Team member, Brian Donovan, is my successor as the head of the Peek'n Peak Snowsports School.

After all of these experiences I find myself as your new Director of Education and Programs. It is my goal and responsibility to build on the strong foundation that Mickey and others before him built. Through collaboration with the different snowsports committees and the input from the Education Staff and from you, the members, we will continue to develop and deliver the highest quality snowsports instruction educational events possible. We will continue to work with other divisions to refine our exam process to make it as fair and consistent as possible. I look forward to working with all of the disciplines as well as the ACE Team and the Race program to improve our programs for you. I will reach out to the Snowsports Directors and Managers to develop and deliver programs that are beneficial and relevant to the needs of our ever changing sport.

I am excited to be serving you as the Director of Education and Programs. I am committed to bringing you the best snowsports instruction educational programs possible. I look forward to hearing from you, the members of this great organization to help me realize my commitment to you by letting me know what you need to make your job as an instructor more successful, more rewarding, and more fun.

from the lack of direct representation and or decision making input from either our individual members or our Divisional organizations. Perhaps this is best illustrated by the financial management and decision-making by ASEA in recent years, that has led to a doubling of dues from $30 to $61 in eleven years (without a doubling of service or performance), far outpacing divisional dues increases during that period. Our concerns are heightened by what we see as a lack of sincere efforts at cost containment and an indifference to the financial hardships on the Divisions. We see the traditional partnership, respect, cooperation and honest communication between the Divisions and ASEA as challenged and strained.

We have come to this point because we share common concerns and because our membership expresses concerns that both they and we feel are not being met as fully as they should be. Our collective memberships have consistently expressed concerns as ASEA members over the degree of recognition they get both from resort management and the skiing public at large. This is particularly the case for part time instructors who often invest far more time and financial resources in developing their professionalism than they ever recover in compensation.

ACCORDINGLY WE DIVISIONS AGREE AS FOLLOWS:

Collective Negotiations

Common Interests: In line with the "3C Philosophy Model" of "Communication, Collaboration and Consolidation" as adopted by the ASEA Board of Directors in 2007, we Divisions acknowledge and agree that while we may have individual interests, we have overwhelming common interests. Going forward we will, to the greatest extent possible, work in concert to promote our common interests.

Acceptance of Roles, Responsibilities and Relationships: We Divisions believe collectively that ASEA should be an association in service to its members, that the Divisions should serve those members directly and that ASEA should assist, not control, the Divisions, in providing services to its members.

Statement of Principles and Goals

Governance: We Divisions believe the individual membership of ASEA is not represented or best served by the current form of ASEA governance or voting polices. Members have no say in their representation at ASEA and no direct input on decisions via their Divisions (since Division representatives on the ASEA Board do not vote based on Divisional interests). As such, we believe significant changes are necessary in the bylaws and governance of ASEA. We Divisions see certain changes as essential in order for us to retain or rebuild a stronger level of trust and confidence in ASEA governance.

Mechanism for Change: We request that ASEA create an ad hoc governance reform task force including representatives designated by our divisions along with the ASEA volunteer leadership to review and make recommendation in light of our governance concerns to the National Board by March 1, 2013. In addition, we are prepared to fully subsidize the costs associated with our participation in the process.

Billing dates and dues payment: We believe that the timing of annual dues billings can have a material effect on membership retention. While ASEA indicates Divisions are free to adopt whatever billing protocols they choose, we have been reluctant to implement changes unilaterally for fear of creating confusion within our membership, thus making the problem worse. We hope to engage ASEA, meaningfully, in adjusting dues billing practices to best reflect the needs and desires of the membership versus the operational preferences of ASEA and some Divisional offices.

Building Better Recognition for Members: We Divisions believe that ASEA should be taking the lead and prioritizing resources toward building higher recognition and respect for PSIA and AASI logos and members to the general public and within the snowsports industry and its operators. We believe current promotional efforts such as "Go with a Pro" have NOT built measurable "man on the street" general public awareness of the value of taking lessons from PSIA and AASI certified instructors. Further, we believe that the value of having PSIA and AASI certified members on the education staff of resort snowsports schools are not recognized to the degree that they could be by the general management of such operations. As such, we request the following from ASEA.

- A. Develop a new and broad-reaching consumer awareness program that will produce both statistical and anecdotal results that members observe and acknowledge.
- B. Reinstate and reinvigorate the National Snowsports School Management Committee at the National level as was determined to be a key priority at the 2007 National strategic planning sessions. Such a committee existed in 1986 and we believe the need for such a concerted effort is even more important at this time in our history.
- C. Assign the responsibility for membership development and retention efforts on a national level to specific national staff that will take ownership of the efforts to create and facilitate membership marketing initiatives and efforts along with the Divisions.

Let me conclude with the following note of clarification. While your Eastern Division Board of Directors has serious concerns regarding our relationship with ASEA and their service to you as our shared membership we are committed to working with the National association to forge a stronger and more effective partnership in the future from which YOU — our members — shall hopefully benefit and reap the rewards and recognition you undoubtedly deserve.

As a follow up to this article I suggest you review Eric Jordan's encouraging report on page 2 that details some of the real progress made between the divisions and ASEA at the recent strategic meetings in Copper Mountain, CO. I believe that our meeting in mid-October with our divisional partners and the development of the Joint Resolution was a key to getting our National association "at the table" to address and resolve issues of concern.

I pledge to keep you updated on our progress with our association partners in Lakewood, CO in the coming weeks and months.

Thank you all for your interest and passion for snowsports. Let it snow!

Peace,

Region 1 Report

Tom Butler, Region I Director reports: By this point we have either a new president or a re-elected one. Either way it was a long drawn out battle with lots (too many actually) of accusations of partisanship and unwillingness to compromise. Long-term relationships need that compromise factor, that willingness to work together to achieve a collective goal. I can't vouch for either political party but I can indeed enthusiastically vouch for several of the divisions within PSIA who have been working hard, together, to make your membership mean a little bit more in the grand scheme of things. To make this organization mean a little bit more to the snow sports industry at large and also to our friends in other countries.

The Eastern, Intermountain, Northwest and Rocky Mountain divisions of PSIA have been actively engaged in a conversation to help make your membership mean more to you and to the industry. The goal has been to make the 9 national divisions of PSIA a little tighter, more consistent, and in a position to help its members achieve their individual goals more effectively. Last month at the fall PSIA-E Board of Directors meeting in Troy NY, representatives from three other divisions, Intermountain, Northwest and Rocky Mountain attended the meeting to discuss how to work together. The national office has attended our meetings in the past so we thought that it was important to this time have this meeting between the divisions do discuss our hopes and beliefs about the organization.

I'll spare you the details here since no doubt, they are included in this edition of the <code>SnowPro</code> but I think it's important for you to know that the Eastern Division, in addition to the other three divisions mentioned are indeed working together to make PSIA better for you and for our guests. I should say that we aren't planning a coup or looking to forge ahead without regard to how the national office or the other divisions feel. We aren't however going to wait to be led. As a mentor of mine once said "there are those who make it happen, and those who say, 'what happened?'". Well, we are making it happen and we are looking to collaborate with other divisions and national in addition to the Intermountain, Northwest, and Rocky Mountain divisions.

Division within the divisions really isn't acceptable which is why this meeting was so welcome and we are looking forward to working with the others who were unable to make the trip. Heck, if our government can survive and do it (granted it's a little rocky along the way), then we certainly should be able to work together and find common ground within PSIA.

One final note of tribute. . . Natalie Terry, PSIA-E lifetime award recipient is being inducted to the Maine Ski Hall of Fame this evening at Lost Valley Ski Area in Auburn Maine. Natalie has been a coach in the Sugarloaf Perfect Turn Ski and Snowboard School since 1969 and has taught well over 25,000 people how to ski. Congrats to Natalie!

As always, thank you for reading.

My name is Tom Butler and I approve this message.

Region 2 Report

Katherine Rockwell, Region 2 Director reports: There comes a time in every organization must take an honest look at what's working and what's not working and make sure that things still line up. That time came recently at the Eastern Division Fall Board meeting. A few issues have been bubbling below the surface for some time now, and have been brought to light in a way that is proactive, firm, but open.

We are not seceding from the national association. There are no big plans to change the standards, the pins or close off from ASEA. We, as an Eastern Board, did take the opportunity to meet with the divisional presidents and executive directors of Rocky Mountain, Intermountain and North West to come up with a joint resolution that outlines our mutual concerns and presents ASEA an opportunity to respond and hopefully improve the services to you as both members of ASEA and PSIA/AASI-E.

It was really a remarkable meeting that at no point dissolved into the heated political debate I was expecting. In a way it boils down to if you believe that ASEA is an equal partner in our 10 corporation agreement (9 divisions plus ASEA), or if they are the parent company and we are franchisees. We, the divisions behind the joint resolution, are leaning more towards the former. We agree we need someone to manage the national marketing, the logos, print the manuals, maintain standards and manage the database and that should be ASEA's main role. Some of the issues discussed, such as the affiliation agreement that ASEA proposed (which Eastern formally rejected), are issues that can be resolved, but we're not quite there yet. Many felt that the affiliation agreement tied us too closely to the ASEA by-laws and put us in a position where we would be unable to provide the best service to you as Eastern members. The proposed licensing agreement that we sent to ASEA addresses the use of the logos and trademarks without intertwining the corporations in a way that could restrict our ability to serve you in the East.

Another concern that was discussed at great length was ASEA's role as the brand manager for PSIA/ AASI. We feel that ASEA could be more focused on promoting the brand that we have created, and in turn we as instructors would have more value to the public and the resorts. Little things like sending the marketing managers of the resorts that have member schools a link or file with all the logos in the acceptable colors and ratios so it would be easy to add to websites and brochures can make a huge difference. Does your school have the logos displayed anywhere? The five areas closest to Pico (and at this point Pico too but I'm working on it) don't have the logos on the web, some mention in passing that they have members on staff, but most don't take advantage of the branding that ASEA has done or celebrate the accomplishments of their staff. We formed a task force in the East to look at ways we can look at this issue and promote PSIA/AASI within our division. Please join the conversation either at http://www.facebook.com/RegionTwoPsiaaasiE or by emailing Curt Cowles gardencenter@comcast.net and myself katherineatpico@gmail.com. Yours are the voices we need to hear. We're working on setting up meetings. I'll be at the SnowSports Management seminar, ProJam (for Après at least) and anytime you're in the area, please stop in.

Happy turning, Katherine and Curt

Dave Welch, Region 3 Director reports: Greetings Region 3 members! With winter quickly approaching now is the time to get signed up for one of the many great educational opportunities that the Eastern Division offers. With something for each discipline there is no excuse not to get out and experience what we are all about.

I'd like to remind everyone to check out the PSIA-E Region 3 Facebook page. Hopefully it will get more activity in the future so check it out soon!!

This winter our region will be holding elections for the board of directors. If you are interested now is the time so look for the call for candidates in the SnowPro and get involved.

Our regions annual membership meeting will be held this winter at a place and time to be decided, we will notify you by e-mail when the arrangements are made so be on the look- out.

Dave Beckwith your Regional Representative and I would like to remind you that if you have any questions or comments please contact us at davelee26@sbcglobal.net or dbwelch317@att.net and we will be happy to get back to you!

Region 4 Report

Eric Jordan, Region 4 Director reports: Colder weather is upon us and winter is right around the corner. I'm sure I am not the only that has all my gear ready to go in the hopes of making some early season turns up north!

Hopefully you have all checked out the event schedule already and seen the amazing variety of events being offered for this season! Speaking of events, we will once again be holding two regional meetings this season. Both events will be held in conjunction with ongoing educational events. We have found that this seems to make it more convenient for everyone to attend. I would strongly urge everyone to attend at least one of the meetings. These meetings will give you an update on what is new with your organization both within the division and nationally. Most importantly, it gives you a great opportunity to express your feelings on the direction of the organization and allows you to get answers to any questions you may have. Meeting dates and locations have not been confirmed yet, but please check back here in the next issue to get all the details!

Please keep in mind that this is an election year for our Region and I would encourage everyone to consider running for a seat on the Board of Directors. This is a great way to get involved as a volunteer leader and help shape the future of this great organization. The next issue of the SnowPro will detail the election process as well as provide you with all the documentation needed to officially run for a seat on the Board.

I would encourage everyone to check out both the Divisional and National web sites since they serve as great resources. Also, do not forget that you can now register for educational events on-line at www.thesnowpros.org. Simply follow the links on the main page and once you sign up and pay for the event of your choice, you will instantly get an e-mail confirming that you are registered!

That's all for now, I look forward to seeing everyone on the hill this season! Eric Jordan, Region 4 Director

Region 5 (Western NY State) Report

Steve Howie, Regional Director and Dick Fox, Regional Representative, report: With the Fall Issue of the SnowPro submission deadline before our November 10th Region 5 Meeting but not being mailed until after the meeting, I will need to wait until the Winter Issue to report on the success of the meeting. As you might have noticed in recent issues of the SnowPro there is much going on in PSIA/AASI. It is important as members that you understand what is happening and who is representing you Divisionally and Nationally. We are starting to see an increase in interested across the division with many candidates running for the BOD or volunteering to serve on committees. Not everyone has the available time to serve on the BOD or a committee but your input is important to the organization. Hopefully many of you will attend one of the Region 5 Meeting this winter but if you cannot, please take the time to call or email Dick Fox or myself with any questions, concerns or suggestions.

I put my order in for a long, cold, snowy winter so hopefully Dick and I will have an opportunity to get out and ski with a few of you before it all melts.

As always, if you have any feedback or concerns, please contact any of you region 5 representatives.

Region 6 Report

Brian Smith, Region 6 Director reports: Every year a new snowsports season comes and goes without fail and if you're like me you wonder what can be different about this winter compared to the last. Well as far as being a member of PSIA I have often thought just that, what is different about the association I've been a part of for almost 25 years, this year?

For the first time multiple divisions met in Troy, New York at the Eastern October board meeting. North West, Rocky Mountain, Intermountain and the Eastern divisions came together for the common interest of our members. This meeting was an eye opener for many on the Eastern board. These divisions share a lot of common challenges doing business in their regions and desire many of the same changes needed as it relates to business with each other and with the National office. This meeting represented an effort for real change in how we do business which will have a positive effect on all of us as members.

I'm happy to report that a joint resolution was signed by all of the divisions present at the meeting which will be presented to the National office. This is a step in the right direction to update and make the necessary changes to the manner in which the divisions do their business with National.

The details of the joint resolution will be explained by our President and Executive Director and I will leave that to them. The experience was a positive one being part of this multi divisional meeting. It is a relief knowing that there are other divisions that have the same challenges and seek the same changes.

This meeting and the outcome of the joint resolution took a lot of hard work to prepare and organize. Our president and Executive Director did a great job in helping bring this meeting into session. Stay tunes for more information this winter on the outcome of this productive meeting. Great job guys!

Across region 6 lifts are spinning, resorts are beginning to buzz with more staff and all the preparations are being made in anticipation of a good season. I hope everyone made it through the latest hurricane safely. Let's hope the Nor' easter pattern continues and brings us lots of snow.

Have a great start to your season! Please let us know your thoughts and suggestions as we move forward into winter.

Thank you

Brian Smith, Region 6 Director

Region 7 Report

Paul Crenshaw, Region 7 Director and Walter Jaeger, Regional Representative report: It's beginning to look as though we shall have a terrific year for skiing. The long-range weather reports are so far in our favor for the South!

On important matters before all if us as members of ASEA (national PSIA and AASI) and PSIA-E, is, we should realize these are two organizations, though often thought of as one, really are two separate entities. Each has its own incorporations, bylaws and dues (though we receive them as one each year). The SnowPro is PSIA-E's public communication tool and 32 Degrees is ASEA's communication tool. Though these two organizations are tied closely there are differences in function and purpose. It is best to view ASEA as our "service" center for a data base, national promotion to industry and the public sectors, publisher of education material, quardian and owner of the shields, pins and other "marks", etc. PSIA-E along with other Divisions produces the education to and for the members, certifies members and has a role as well in promoting the value of membership to the instructor community and within the industry. These are important distinctions to remember when evaluating benefits of membership. Does ASEA fulfill its responsibilities? Does PSIA-E fulfill its responsibilities? I can say unequivocally that PSIA-E fulfills almost all of its obligations and presses extremely hard to provide as many benefits to the members as possible. My interaction as your co-representative with National, though slight, leaves me with many questions regarding ASEA's level of service. Within each issue of 32 Degrees we should all try to understand the emphasis and direction ASEA is promoting. Does ASEA serve your interests? When surveys arrive we should view them in the context of the primary roles each organization has stated.

This season is one of opportunity for Region 7. The events held this year across the region provide numerous opportunities for better personal skiing/riding, better teaching, better analysis, exam preparation and exams. The success of our events relies on each Region 7 member – success requires participation. Each of us should commit to at least one event this season within Region 7. Of particular note is the Southern Snowsports Management Seminar held at Timberline Jan 16-17, 2013. This is the first in a number of years to be held in the South. Participation from each school means Region 7 will be on track for future Seminars. The events are designed to promote the best in Snowsports Management and should provide a significant educational experience for all attending. Let's also make a special effort to get the AASI Level 1 members ready to take the Level 2 Exam at Timberline on Feb. 27 – March 1. Last season it was scheduled and cancelled due to lack of participants. Let's make it happen this season.

Canaan Valley, WV has put in a new upgraded snow making system for 2012-13. Also in place is a new beginner's slope with a dedicated ski school teaching area, a magic carpet for beginner teaching, renovation of the ski patrol building and a new tubing park. The main lodge renovation has also been completed with 100 new rooms. All are welcomed improvements to the guests. Well done Canaan!

At this time we have a tentative date of January 14, 2013 for our Region 7 Meeting. This meeting will be held at Snowshoe in conjunction with several alpine events being held. We encourage all members of Region 7 to attend.

As always Paul and I are available for any questions or issues, please e-mail with any thoughts at all:

Training Schmaining

By Joshua Larimar & Bonnie Kolber

arly season leg pains on long runs make me wish I had been strengthening my muscles. After two runs, my legs were burning, and I wasn't getting the snap that I wanted. The disappointment of the burn in my legs, made me feel like a newbie all over again. I wanted get back into the good stuff, and trust my body. This was my motivation. "I just want to ride my snowboard, not train to ride it" we may think. Training in the off season can be tough without something to keep you motivated. I would like to share my solutions for "easy" training, to ensure performance and play on day one.

Picking a source of motivation is important. This source should represent something that frustrates you early season. It could be anything from falling on your first box or rail, slipping an edge on your first carve turn or falling while getting off the chair lift. Using something that happened to you last year, early season, helps you find focus. The source that I used was - sore legs on the first runs of the season.

Once you have a source of motivation you can find activities to strengthen this weakness. The activity can be anything you would like but should be something that you enjoy doing or do everyday. Here is where your creative, snow sport teaching mind comes into play. Take a simple example of doing dishes. My focus on leg strength lead me to standing in a wider, squatted, open toed stance. This made my legs burn and reminded me of my source of motivation which pushed me to hold the stance longer to build stamina. Here is another example using bike riding. I always ensure on every bike ride I take (once a week or so) that I find a hill to climb that creates leg burn before I reach the top. Again reminding myself about the source of motivation and allowing for the push to the top. A bunch of little things like these strung together build toward strengthening your weakness and provides continuous training anytime, early season or throughout the winter.

Using tools is a great way to train for snowboarding without feeling like you are "training." If you have the opportunity to go surfing or skateboarding (take a lesson or go with a friend) it is a great way to keep your muscles strong for snowboarding. Although they are different sports, they're similar in the way you stabilize your body using smaller muscle groups. For example, when you skate, if your body is not properly "stacked" and relaxed over the board as you turn you will get immediate feedback. No way are you going to complete that turn being tense and rigid! The same thing happens with surfing, if you are off balance, you are off the board! If you don't have the opportunity or interest in trying other board sports, a balance board is a great alternative. You can buy one or make your own with pvc pipe or a 2 liter bottle, and plywood. All of these options are fun ways to cross-train for balance and muscle strength. Once on your snowboard, this will help you manage a rail, stick an edge on an icy trail, or make smoother turns in the halfpipe.

The last and most important activity for getting ready for winter is stretching. I try to stretch for at least 10 minutes when I get up in the morning. Even stretching for 3 or 5 minutes is an easy habit to form (trust me). Do you remember where you get sore early season? Try to target those muscle groups that burn when you snowboard. If you make it a part of your daily routine you will build muscle, protect your joints, and prevent early season injury.

Hoping that you will find fun ways to train your body for easy re-entry into winter and keep you healthy for the season. You will thank yourself for taking advantage of simple tools and everyday tasks to improve your riding all season, every season. Keep your training fun and focused to get the most out of every moment. Finally, give yourself a break if you forget to train, miss a set goal or get pulled away from your training plan. Look for new opportunities to add another small, focused, easy and fun activity to your training today!

NEW! – AASI Women's Camp

These two-day Camps are now located at various resorts throughout the eastern division and count as an educational update. This Camp is offered to members and non-members at the same low price, so bring a friend! The Women's Camp will provide the opportunity to ride and socialize with other women who share the passion of snowboarding. Interested participants should feel comfortable riding on all blue and many black trails at the host resort. The collective group will make a strong impact on overall event content. A lower clinic fee in addition to a higher staff:participant ratio will assure more individual attention than most of our other events, and an open forum near the end of the first camp day will allow all participants an opportunity to help shape the direction that AASI and the industry takes in the future. Door prizes including a Burton snowboard awarded to one lucky participant should ensure these new Women's Camps become our most popular women's event. Come join us!

AASI Certification group ironing in Colorado

National Fall Conference Summary

By Ted Fleischer, AASI Eastern Advisor

his past October several members of the Eastern AASI Educational Staff attended the first National Fall Conference at Copper Mountain in Colorado. The purpose of this conference was to further develop continuity between divisions, at a national level. This is neccessary for seemless transition between divisions for members, and cleaner recipocity when members relocate to another division. Additionally, when all divisions are on the same page in all respects of their Certification and Specialist Programs, then members that move between divisions are better serviced and our organization as a whole is significantly strengthened in the global community. With several new National Standards and Programs developed in the last couple of years, it was necessary to calibrate the interpretation of these standards within divisions. It was also neccessary to take a closer look at the process that each division uses when evaluating participants.

The conference was attended by representatives from all 9 divisions nationally, as well as all of the different disciplines within those divisions. Groups were formed to cover Adaptive Skiing and Snowboarding, Alpine Certification Standards, Childrens Specialists, Nordic Certification Standards, AASI Certification Standards, and Freestyle Specialsts. The Eastern Division had representatives in all of these categories with AASI Education Staff Members in both the Certification and Freestyle Specialist groups. For two days, these folks worked 2 hours on snow each morning followed by 6+ hour indoor sessions. The groups took a hard look at how the Standards were written and how they have been interpreted by each Division over the last couple of years since their inception. The third day was all indoor as the groups compiled their findings and presented their summary to the other disciplines and representatives. As this was done, several things became clear. First, except for a few minor terminology interpretations, all divisions were very close in their interpretation of the new National Standards. Second, different divisions used several different methods of evaluating these standards nationally. Third, due to the progressive nature of our sports, these standards are always in flux and that to remain current they must remain living documents.

In the AASI groups, as we looked at the differences in how exams were run, we found that similarity here was not as necessary as being on the same page within the standards. The differences were in place to best serve the members and logistical issues that were specific to each division. At times it was painful and frustrating to fine tune the differences in interpretation that did exist, but after several long meetings, we managed to come to a consensus. Our Programs and Divisions continue to become stronger as these living documents of certifications and specialists grow.

As a final observation, the AASI folks, at least, found that what really makes us strong as an organization was, in fact, these small differences between divisions. The strong consensus among divisions regarding standards was important and the differences regarding the fringe aspects of the process is what allows us to be creative, stay current, and adjust to change. If we lose this fringe aspect in either our organization or in the Art of Snowboarding, then we could lose our creativity and our ability to progress.

The Challenges of Integration

By Kathy Chandler, Level III Alpine, Level III Adaptive PSIA Eastern Advisor Waterville Valley Adaptive Sports

ow many times have you had children in a class whose behaviors make it difficult to run the class the way you want or adults who you thought "I am just not getting through to this person"? As we all know more and more often people with undisclosed learning challenges are taking lessons in "regular" alpine or snowboard classes. They don't want to be labeled as "different" and want desperately to fit in and be considered "normal". So they join the regular ski school, rather than take an adaptive lesson. This is the way of the future. Our population wants to be normal, so they put themselves into regular skiing or snowboard lessons. We in the adaptive sector need to help with this situation. We have lots of wonderful adaptive instructors all over the eastern division who have lots of training in handling challenging behaviors and learning differences. They are ready and willing to avail themselves.

Some typical behaviors we see in people who are not comfortable in new situations include: aggressively negative attitude towards the new situation, flapping, tears, anger, uncooperative and or unhappy attitude about using the equipment, lack of understanding about seemingly simple direction, and many more. Basically it is a lack of cooperation in the strange new learning environment. These may be red flags that indicate some sort of issue. They have poor strategies to deal with new situations and changes in their routine.

As the instructor you need to first recognize the behaviors and react accordingly. Understand that transitions are difficult, so be patient.

Be aware of your body language. Use eye contact.

Use physical gestures.

They are typically visual learners, so stay close. They may be distracted by all of the others in the group or the activity on the mountain.

Many are "do-ers" so keep your talk simple, show it and get them moving. Repetition of similar actions on the same trail creates more comfort.

Use "first,....then" phrases e.g. "first, make your skis look like the letter V, then ski towards me."

Use direct prompts like "do this" or "come here".

Use universal signals to help him/her to understand. Big wide arms indicate "big". Mock shiver for "cold"

Kids with Autism are often fascinated with numbers, so use them. e.g. "Two more runs then we will go in for a break" or "count the towers as you ride the lift."

Do not use pronouns. Always call them by name.

Be alert to some of the situations that may indicate danger.

Some kids with Autism may not have the ability to sense danger. They may jump off the lift, run in front of traffic, run away, ski into other people. You can help to secure them on the chair lift by putting your pole across their lap and hooking it under the arm of the chair.

Their facial processing skills may be limited, especially for Autistic children. They may think a woman skiing by with long hair is their mom or the man with the facial hair is dad.

Use only concrete terms, they do not understand concepts. (Fast or slow, hot or cold, hungry or tired are all hard to know.)

When/if someone gets out of control, it is hard, but do not get mad. Try to understand what is frustrating the student. If there is not a clear indication of what it is, there is little you can do except wait it out and prevent any damage. It will pass.

The best way to handle repetitive behaviors is to ignore them, interrupting them can cause more agitation, which may cause anger and aggression.

If you have an adaptive program at your area, don't hesitate to contact them for assistance as needed. They have such a wealth of information that can help you. There will always be a place for all of the adaptive programs that we have in the country. They will be there to handle all those who have significant physical disabilities that require adaptive equipment and those who know that a one-on-one situation for their child will be a beneficial environment for learning. Just prepare yourself to handle the many children who are integrated into the "regular" alpine or snowboard lessons.

Another Event for Adaptive ecause of the interest in doing so, we have added another Level II exam for adaptive at Belleayre on February 11 & 12, 2013. We will offer all four modules so candidates are able to take at least two of the modules, in the two day event. This will make it easier for those candidates in the New York or southern regions to get into the pipeline of achieving Level II certification.

Adaptive Examiner Exchange

ach year brings new and exciting opportunities for the adaptive leadership. This year the Board of Directors for PSIA has agreed to support an examiner exchange with the Rocky Mountain Division. This means that one of our examiners will go to an exam in the Rocky Mountain division to understudy and learn as much as possible about what they are doing, and how they are running their exams. One of their examiners will also come east to one of our exams to do the same thing. This exchange of examiners will give us all the opportunity discuss our similarities and differences and make sure we are all meeting the standards.

We have all been involved in developing National Adaptive Standards for certification. It is important for a pin earned in the east to mean the same as a pin earned in another division. Geoff Krill, our National Team member, has been instrumental in facilitating a sharing of best practices in all divisions, to ensure the new National Standards are used by all. The outcome of this sharing of ideas will help us to build a consistent message to the adaptive community.

It is through the sharing of information about what each division is doing for certification that we can ensure the pin means the same all over the country. It is an important step for the adaptive sector to be consistent in our education of all candidates in the pipeline for PSIA certification. This exchange is the start of keeping the eastern adaptive sector in a position to stay at the top of our game. Thanks to the Eastern Board of Directors for their support in making this happen.

2012 Children's Academy

Theme: Under the Big Top

Sub-theme: CTEC (Contemporary Trends for Educating Children)

By Sue Kramer PSIA-E ACE team coach and Alpine Examiner

efore there was Cirque Du Soleil, there was the Big Apple Circus. As a kid, I remember so many things going on simultaneously that I didn't know where to look. Stilt-walkers, jugglers, flame-throwers, and wild animals! Oh and I can't forget the cotton candy. Nowadays that kind of entertainment would be considered dull and unimaginative, hence flame-throwers on stilts, acrobatics that defy human movement, and how about sticking one's face into the mouth of a cooped-up lion. That number didn't turn out so well.

Just as circus entertainers must continually seek innovative maneuvers, children's snowsports educators must keep up with contemporary trends in the learning environment. Today's kids ARE different in many ways, than their teachers. For starters, the access to information at the literal touch of a finger is mind-blowing. Lessons taught on a 2-dimensional piece of paper are more often taught in 3- dimensions. Kids don't just memorize, they live it and then share what they've experienced, with everyone.

In keeping with the circus theme and current trends in learning, this year's academy, to be held at Okemo Mountain on December 10th and 11th , will feature many new and fun approaches to teaching this generation of "digital natives." Academy goers will be able to choose from several "tracks," depending on years of experience. In addition to these tracks, we will have a track specifically for anyone wanting to prepare for the Children's Specialist events, as well as the Level 1 PSIA and AASI track. These groups will stay with the same course conductor each morning and then choose from several electives for each of the afternoons. Electives include topics such as using digital media in snowsports, introducing freestyle maneuvers at the intermediate level, becoming a gamemaker, development theory, and of course, bag of tricks.

Course conductors will discuss and move through trends for educating this generation of young learners within each of the tracks. Whenever possible and practical, video and media will be used to enhance the learning experience. Our après-ski program on Monday night will feature a 3-Ring Circus that will encompass many areas of learning from the non-digital (old school) learning tools to full-on video games and digital learning devices. Cotton candy and kettle corn will be on the list for snacks!

The ACE team encourages anyone who is new to teaching to those interested in becoming an ACE to sign up. Attending the Children's Academy is a great way to start filling your bag with new activities and ideas to bring back to your home mountain. For those interested in becoming an ACE, the "Academy" is the best way to experience first-hand what we do and to see how much fun we have doing it. CUL8R (See You Later)!!!

Please take a look online at course descriptions and at our event schedule for early season events to partake in. After last year's quick end to the season you might want to sign up for an early season event and get ready for the year.

Enjoy the articles by two of our Nordic leaders on our Board of Examiners. Randy French and Jim Tasse. See you on snow.

Telemark Progression for the Alpine Crossover: Part II—Activities to Develop an Efficient Basic Telemark Turn

By Jim Tassé
PSIA-E Nordic Downhill Examiner
PSIA Level III Alpine Instructor
Mt. Abram Ski School, Greenwood, ME
New England Telemark Ski School Director

n an earlier SnowPro column, which can be found in Winter 2009 SnowPro (page 24), I wrote about the first part of a progression for teaching telemark to experienced alpine skiers who "crossover" to try telemark technique. In that column, I discussed activities that help to dial in the telemark stance. This column is focused on taking an alpine crossover skier from stance activities towards actually making telemark turns.

Remember—the alpine crossover lesson is NOT a beginner lesson! The alpine crossover already knows how to ski using alpine technique, and in many cases is an expert used to speed, athletic movements, and challenging terrain. He or she already knows how to do quite a lot on skis. Build on that experience!

An alpine skier crossing over to telemark needs to start by spending some time exploring freeheel equipment (ie. just skiing around and making alpine turns!) and developing a functional telemark stance. Once a skier has some success holding a telemark stance (feet equally weighted, with about a boot length between the front and back feet, hips centered between the front and back feet, with the ribcage pointed somewhat downhill and slightly countered to the hips), activities that begin to put it to work can begin to be explored.

The key focus at this point in the alpine crossover lesson is to connect the (competent) alpine skier's use of edge release movements with telemark technique, and to head off a "stride, then turn" pattern. As with alpine skiing, releasing the edge of the downhill ski is critical to moving efficiently into a tele turn without stemming and wedging movements. Self-taught tele skiers will often stride the new outside foot forward before releasing edges, which causes a sequential, wedgy turn that is less efficient, smooth and functional than turns that begin with edge release movements. I encourage you to coach a skier to release edges before starting to stride. That is: a skier should not stride and then turn, because the stride is the turn.

One activity that works well to begin to get skiers to blend the telemark stance with the edge release moves is telemark garlands. Use wide, gently sloping (but not flat) novice terrain. In this activity, the skier begins in a traverse with skis edged in the telemark stance, and then moves their body slightly down the hill to "flatten" or roll the skis off their edges to create a smear or slideslip accompanied by a slight steering of the ski tips downhill towards the fall line. The skis need only turn a few degrees down the hill before they are steered back up and across the hill and the edge is re-engaged. A bit of skidding in the tele stance as the skier re-engages the edges helps to give the skier the sensations which will be present at the bottom of a basic telemark turn. Points to offer feedback on include holding a tele stance, maintaining upper/lower body separation (ie. the sternum should face generally downhill, and not "square up" to face the same direction as the ski tips, which will usually cause a new tele skier to snap into an alpine stance) and not turning the skis too far down the fall line, which will cause acceleration that, again, might snap a new tele skier back into an alpine stance.

The telemark garland also provides a step towards the monomark, which is one of the most important and useful activities a telemark coach can present to student skiers. In the monomark, a skier holds a telemark stance and makes turns in both directions WITHOUT a lead change or shuffle. This activity further dials in a balanced telemark stance and edge release/change movements. Start on very gentle terrain. The challenge for most skiers is presented when the lead foot is the downhill ski (as it would be at the end of a tele turn). Coach the skier to move their centers of mass towards the turn to make the skis release and gradually change edges as they are steered through the arc of turn. And make that downhill foot go first!

Once a skier has some ability with the monomark, it is time to introduce the full turn and the timing of the lead change. A useful way to approach teaching the turn is to "monomark in, telemark out". In this pattern, a skier employs the edge release and stance experience the monomark develops to move at the turn with the downhill foot forward, as it is at the end of the previous turn. The skier should be coached to delay the shuffle until the ski tips point almost directly down the fall line. At that point, the skier strides into the new telemark stance, moving the new downhill foot forward. Voilá! A contemporary tele skier is created.

Things to pay attention to as a coach include noting whether the stride happens before edge release, and whether a wedge develops between the skis. Of course, stance and balance may also require some on-going coaching!

After some practice with this move, the new tele skier should be coached that the legs stride throughout the turn, with the feet passing each other as the tips are pointed nearly right down the fall line. A smooth, continuous shuffle should be encouraged. Newbies will often "snap" through the shuffle, and assume a static posture through the bottom of turns. Have them work on smoothing out the leg movements so the feet move throughout the turn, without "park and ride" stances. Remember: the stride IS the turn.

Of course, there is more than one way to skin a cat (or coach an alpine crossover!), but here is a place to begin. Remember to be student-centered in your lessons, and keep it fun! But I've found that using these activities and principals, you can bring an experienced alpine skier towards a contemporary telemark turn in as little as thirty minutes. And once they've got it, they often invest in light, comfy tele gear that lets them make both their alpine turns, and their new freeheel ones! Happy turns!

Crunch Your Way to Better Poling

By Randy French X-Country Examiner and Lead Trainer am not sure how many years you have been skiing and teaching skiing, but I remember when a great double pole had hinging at the waist and the skier's back would come just about parallel with the ground with poles extending very far past the body. Hands went past the knee or lower and hands continued past the body when viewed from the side. Hmmm, this does not seem to be the case anymore for double pole or skating. Instead we want to use the upper abdominal muscles (among others) to generate power and the upper body compresses but not to the extent of by gone days.

While we can demonstrate the 2 different body positions it is better especially for our doers and feelers to have the have students feel the difference in the muscles used. Here is a way to do that. You can do the following sit ups either indoors before heading out or on the snow if weather and people's clothing are suitable. Partner your students into the classic sit-up position (no skis or poles, this is laying down on their back) and have one person hold their partner's ankles while our soon to be kinesthetic learner does a sit up with their hands behind their neck. While doing the sit-ups, only a few are needed, have our kinesthetic learner feel where in their abdomen they feel the muscles being used. The result should be a hinging feeling lower down near the waist. This first sit up will be analogous to the older, fully hinged at the waist double pole. Next have partners let go of ankles so the kinesthetic learner can do crunches with hands held crossed on the chest. Again focus on the feeling of what muscle groups are used. This should be in the upper abdomen, just below the rib cage. This will be the feeling we want to repeat once we are back on snow.

Now it is time for madam or sir kinesthetic skier to head out to the snow. Have students do a full deep compression double pole feeling like the first sit up and then do a shorter double pole feeling the crunch just below the rib cage especially at the initiation of the poling. You can have them experiment back and forth trying to recreate the feeling of the crunch on their double pole. You can mix in at this point a variety of drills or exercises all emphasizing power at the start of the poling but try to use a compare and contrast method of teaching so students are aware of what muscles to use to engage the core when poling.

If students are successful not only will they be able to double pole with more power, but they will be able to show off their abs of steel when the ski season is over.

Snowsports School Management

Is your Snow Sports School on the Menu?

By Joan Heaton, Eastern Division Area Rep Program Coordinator

Did you ever call your ski area to speak with someone in your Snow Sports School?" Try it! You might be surprised with what happens. As part of my work as Coordinator of the PSIA-E/AASI Area Rep Program, I DO call ski areas to talk with someone in the Snow Sports School, hopefully, the Director. I call either to recruit Reps into the program, to discuss the program with the Director, or to make contact with the Area Rep. I find that some of the difficulties that happen to me when making these phone calls can make contact extremely difficult for what I will describe as a 'public person'.

For the most part, when you call a ski area you are answered with an automatic answering machine that describes a programmed 'menu'. This menu lists all the possible choices available to you. In too many instances, the Snow Sports School is not even listed on that menu: it's not one of the options from which to choose! So, where does one go from there? The only choice seems to be to choose 'operator'; and, in most cases, from this point, the 'operator' does connect you with the Snow Sports School.

"Have you ever simply entered your ski area as a 'totally public person' who MIGHT be thinking of taking a Snow Sports School lesson????" Try it!!! Again, you might be surprised as to how difficult it is to LOCATE the Snow Sports School. As part of my work in the Area Rep Program, I also VISIT ski areas with the clear intention of going to the Snow Sports School and, hopefully, speaking with the Director. Keep in mind that my specific purpose is to go to the Snow Sports School. Well, try as I may, there are instances when I simply cannot locate the Snow Sports School. Often, for the most part, there are no signs giving any information as to where the school is and none that even suggest that a Snow Sports School exists. Good, bad, or otherwise, in my efforts to find the Snow Sports School, I have learned that the 'bartender' usually knows everything, even the location of the Snow Sports School!

Perhaps, it could be to our advantage to check out our home areas to see just how easy or difficult it is to locate our own Snow Sports School. Pretend to be a 'public person' and see what signs are there to help you find your school. It is said that of all the departments in a ski area, the Snow Sports School instructor is the most visible. Let's take that visibility one more step and do what we can to make the location of our school more visible and easy to find. And, of course, having a position on the ski area's 'phone menu' would make it so much easier for our 'public person' to make connect by phone. Good luck!!

"How to get the Most out of your Snowsports School Staff"

By Gail Setlock, Region 6 Representative, Snowsports School Management Committee

s we gear up for the upcoming season, Snow Sports School Directors take look at our staff and ask: How many will return this year? How many new staff will I need to hire? Is my staff continuing to grow as instructors, or have they become complacent in their skiing/riding skills or in their teaching knowledge and styles?

As Directors we need to look at our successes, failures, and best practices that will help us develop and create a dynamic staff who can best meet the needs and demands of our clientele. To start, we need to analyze our staff – how many instructors do we employ, how many supervisors do we have, what is the average age of our staff, what is our yearly retention rate, and more. Take a look at the Strengths of your staff – as individuals and as a whole. What are the weaknesses – as individuals and as a whole? Do a thorough analysis.

Assessing your staff is important. Steve Martin, Snow Sports Director at Liberty Mountain in Pennsylvania, conducts both written evaluations and on-snow observations of his staff teaching lessons. As Steve and his supervisors review the evaluations and observations, they determine where there may be voids in their training. Analyzing their findings has motivated them to restructure their training to better meet the needs of their staff.

While assessing your staff is important, it is also important to analyze yourself as a Director and Manager. Your staff should know what it is that you, the Director, expect from them. At Gore Mountain, as the Snow Sports School Director, I have provided staff with my vision and mission statements for our Snow Sports School. We have instituted a 20+ page Policy and Procedures Manual, like most Schools do. But more importantly, I have posted and emphasized the key practices I expect from my staff; things that foster a good work ethic such as 'be punctual, be professional, and be knowledgeable of Gore Mountain and the Gore Region'. When my staff knows what I expect of them, I believe they will be better teachers and coaches, and better employees. As Directors we need to be great leaders and guide our staff to success.

If you are attending the Snow Sports Management Seminar this December, I hope you join Steve Martin, Mickey Stone and me for a session on "How to get the most from your Staff". We'll guide you through a thorough analysis of your Snow Sports School staff, and help you develop an action plan to guide your staff to success.

Ski History Documentary Series Now Available

n exciting and interesting ski history documentary film series, produced, directed and written by fellow PSIA Level III instructor Ian Scully, principal agent of Culture Films, LLC, should be of interest to our members. In our Alpine Exam and Study Guide this documentary series is already suggested viewing, and we may well be used in portions in some PSIA-E workshops and courses.

The series – Legacy: Austria's Influence on American Skiing documents the rich history of Austrian skiing and ski teaching, and its early impact upon the development of skiing, and in particular ski schools, in the Americas. In particular, it serves as valuable background information on the early development of PSIA and ski teaching methodology in this country.

The series documents three generations of ski racers and ski instructors who, due to poverty, war, and a chance to make it in "The Land of Opportunity" emigrated from Austria to teach America how to ski. .

Part I

Hannes Schneider & His Disciples (1890 -)

(Note: Part I is divided into two DVD segments)

Part II:

Kruckenhauser & His Ambassadors (1950 -)

Part III:

Austrian Ski Culture & Helicopter Skiing (1960 -)

(Note: Each of these 4 DVDs is approximately 50-55 minutes)

In the Americas, these Austro-American Alpine Ambassadors became a brotherhood that promoted and cherished not only discipline and hard work, but also entrepreneurship and "gemutlichkeit". And together they won numerous prestigious ski races, coached many a successful American ski racer, and played a key leadership role in the creation and development of some of the Americas' premier ski schools and ski resorts, such as: Aspen, Boyne, Franconia, Mt. Washington Valley, Jackson Hole, Sugar Bowl, Stowe, Sun Valley & Canadian Helicopter Skiing.

Consider obtaining this series as part of your library of educational resources due to the strong historical base it provides for the development of our overall knowledge of skiing and ski teaching in the U.S.

The series can be purchased via the series' website - www.legaski.com.

Skiing With Snow Leopards On Valentine's Day

By Matthew A. Noviello Level I Alpine Ski Instructor Thunder Ridge Ski Area

y Tuesday evening Six-Week-Group class had finished up on February 7th. One week later, I was back on the regular lesson schedule eager to teach new students. On the other hand, it was Valentine's Day, and I really wanted to be home enjoying a romantic dinner with my sweetheart.

Another instructor, Jane, was teaching the last class of a Six-Week-Group of five children that had never skied before. Four of her students were ready to advance from the bunny hill to more challenging terrain. However, one young girl, Chris, was not ready to join them. My supervisor thought that it would be a good idea to leave Chris with me for further basic instruction. It sounded like a plan so Chris and I headed over to the beginner's area.

When I helped her up the second time, I decided to use some of my more successful methods for teaching. "Falling is okay, but skiing is more fun. You want to have fun, right?" I think that Chris said yes but she talked so softly that it was hard to hear her.

I also mentioned that it was important to have a good stance in order not to fall. "Let's pretend we are hugging a big tree. Hold your arms like this..." Mimicking me, Chris made some headway as we moved along. Then she fell down on her left side again, this time with arms flailing.

We finally made it to the bunny hill but I was most concerned for Chris' safety. I was worried that when we got to the top she would just go on a breakaway and get hurt. Instead, Chris went into a defensive wedge stance and went straight down to the bottom. On the positive side, she didn't fall but I reminded her that skiers have to make turns. Chris didn't respond.

This scenario played out a few more times. On the fifth run, as we rode up the magic carpet lift, I thought to myself that Chris was not progressing and that I was failing to teach her anything. It became obvious to me that in her mind, there was no need to try to turn. It was equally clear to me that my words were falling on deaf ears and that my demonstrations and games were not registering with Chris. I felt frustrated and wasn't sure what to do.

I had recently taken the PSIA-E Children's Specialist-1 course at Thunder Ridge Ski Area, where I teach. In the CS-1 course I was taught how children develop physically, emotionally, and how they learn differently as they age. More importantly, was the emphasis on teaching style. The instructor needs to adapt his or her methods to meet the needs of each child.

Some of the things that I learned in the CS-1 course began to come back to me. We had learned about the stages of learning development that were first explained by Jean Piaget, a Developmental Psychologist. Chris was seven years old, but her learning abilities were that of a younger child. In addition, she had some lateral issues. Chris could make left turns but not right turns.

Chris learned like she was in the early part of Piaget's Pre-Operational Stage. This stage is most often seen in children ages 2 to 7. Pre-Operational children believe that they are the center of their world and that the whole world revolves around them. As my four year old grandson Jack taught me about how he knows when to get off the lift: "When the ground comes up to you, just jump off the chair."

In the CS-1 course, I also learned that children at that stage have very active imaginations. They like to play games that involve fiction or animals. So I asked Chris what her favorite animal was. The answer that I heard sounded something like "lappig." Chris spoke in such a whispered voice that it took me several tries before I figured out that she was saying - leopard.

At that point I came up with a new game where we chased snow leopards. When we got off the magic carpet, I looked to our right, pointed with my arm and said in a loud cheerful voice: "Look I see a snow leopard. Let's get a closer look." We skied to our right, I stopped and pointed left and said: "Look I see another one over there." We skied to the left to get a closer look at the snow leopard. We repeated this all the way down and then again on each successive run.

Finally, Chris was able to focus on skiing. Her turns and traverses had improved greatly. Afterall, we were on an exciting adventure. At the end of our lesson, we met with Jane, her group instructor. And with a beaming smile, Chris told Jane all about chasing snow leopards.

Most of us become energized when our students learn quickly. It seems like we must have done a great job. In reality, while the lessons in which the students accelerate easily may seem like a big success, those are the students who probably didn't really need the lesson.

That evening I really struggled and Chris really needed my help. I realized that the most exhausting, frustrating, or hardest lessons for the instructor are the most valuable for the student. I also was very thankful for to have taken the Children's Specialist-1 course. I gained valuable insight into child development and how to apply this to real-life ski instruction for children.

A New Season... Another Season

By Pete Howard, Eastern Alpine Education & Certification Chairperson

f you are a snow sports educator no doubt you are excited about the prospect of another winter sports season just around the corner. Maybe it will snow (a lot). Maybe it won't blow, maybe we will remember how to go right and left, and maybe we will meet other folks who are like-minded professionals. Chances are we will remember the patterns that are ingrained in our muscle memory as well as we remember the gang in the locker room and the turns of our favorite trails. Even though the year and the snow may be fresh, the trails and how we move will be the same unless...

Unless we take the time to look a new at how we move, unless we open ourselves to meeting other professionals and new ideas, what could be a new year may be just another year. Les Otten the one time CEO of the American Skiing Company had some good ideas about what makes skiers tick. One of the signature sayings of the American Skiing Company was "The better you get the better it gets" I think most of us would agree that when we develop our skills at an activity be it music, art, coaching, sports, etc. we enjoy it more.

One of the greatest things about our sport is that it seems possible to continually improve in spite of Father Time. What is lost in youthful exuberance and reaction time is gained in accurate timing and prudent tactical choices based on experience. An interviewer once said to the great base ball player Reggie Jackson who was nearing the end of his major league career "It seems that you are not making the spectacular plays you once did." Reggie's response was "That's because I set myself up so I don't have to." While a series of linked recoveries may look spectacular it is indicative of inaccuracy, and like Reggie we can set our selves up for success if we know how.

As PSIA -AASI members we are all fortunate to be around "cutting edge" skiers and riders. With three National Team alpine members, one AASI Team member, and one Adaptive Team Member on the Eastern Education Staff it would be fair to say worldclass training is in easy reach. Also on the Eastern Education staff is past national team members and several people who have recently competed at that level. In addition there are Education Staff members who have specific skill sets related to racing, free ride, child centered teaching, and backcountry. Also worth mentioning is the talent and experience that resides within the Eastern membership. Many veteran members have been to National Academies and several Masters events. To find all this imagery, information, and coaching talent all that is necessarv is to look at the Eastern Event Schedule. Some events this season indicate the amount of vertical feet that probably will be covered during the event, others specify what the subject matter will be, and still others indicate who will conduct the event (National Team members). It is tempting for a number of reasons to go to the event that seems the nearest or the most convenient however if you want this to be a new season not just another season go to the event that excites you. Seek talent like fresh tracks. May you immerse yourself in both this new season.

Sincerely Peter Howard

Eastern Education and Certification Chairman

PSIA-AASI Eastern Division Event Participant Safety Policy

Skiing and riding are athletic and physically demanding activities. It is the expectation of PSIA-AASI Eastern Division that each participant attending an event or exam shall possess the requisite level of fitness and stamina to participate safely, on all appropriate terrain and at a pace consistent with other members of the group. As such, PSIA-AASI Eastern Division reserves the right to have education staff reassign participants in any event that may pose a risk to themselves or others or consistently impede the progress of the group to another, more skill and fitness-appropriate event. In such a situation, an appropriate event will be recommended and the member may be transferred to that event at no charge (other than any difference in event costs) or a full refund of the originally registered event will be provided.

PSIA-AASI Eastern Division Event Participant Safety Policy

Skiing and riding are athletic and physically demanding activities. It is the expectation of PSIA-AASI Eastern Division that each participant attending an event or exam shall possess the requisite level of fitness and stamina to participate safely, on all appropriate terrain and at a pace consistent with other members of the group. As such, PSIA-AASI Eastern Division reserves the right to have education staff reassign participants in any event that may pose a risk to themselves or others or consistently impede the progress of the group to another, more skill and fitness-appropriate event. In such a situation, an appropriate event will be recommended and the member may be transferred to that event at no charge (other than any difference in event costs) or a full refund of the originally registered event will be provided.

PSIA-AASI Eastern Division Event Participant Safety Policy

Skiing and riding are athletic and physically demanding activities. It is the expectation of PSIA-AASI Eastern Division that each participant attending an event or exam shall possess the requisite level of fitness and stamina to participate safely, on all appropriate terrain and at a pace consistent with other members of the group. As such, PSIA-AASI Eastern Division reserves the right to have education staff reassign participants in any event that may pose a risk to themselves or others or consistently impede the progress of the group to another, more skill and fitness-appropriate event. In such a situation, an appropriate event will be recommended and the member may be transferred to that event at no charge (other than any difference in event costs) or a full refund of the originally registered event will be provided.
